Relatives of hostages. . . . tense, apprehensive, angry

WASHINGTON (AP) — "Relax and be patient," says the sign under the big red cross on the door of the church. But the people inside are not relaxed. They are not patient.

"How can we relax? Our mothers, fathers, sisters, brothers — the people we love are there," asks a girl who waits.

Ebbing and flowing, about 100 people wait for word about the fate of their relatives and friends who were taken hostage by terrorists Wednesday at the B'nai B'rith headquarters several blocks away.

They wait in a brightly lit, cot-lined basement of the Foundry Methodist Church. The mood is quiet, almost fragile. People speak very gently and politely. Two women hold hands, relatives embrace.

But there is a current of anger. Here and there, angry young men in jeans and track shoes huddle and mutter. They come in. They leave without explanation.

One young man exercises on the floor, stretching his legs, while a man being interviewed on television spouts hatred for Jews. The young man curses and sneers.

Later in the evening, the families meet with Dan Thursz, executive vice president of B'nai B'rith. He is trying to compile an accurate list of hostages, and he begins reading names from payroll records, guest books and any other source he can find. These are the people he thinks were in the building when the terrorists struck.

About 50 hushed people cluster around. Occasionally, a name is called and someone says that person is safe. "Are you sure?" Thursz asks. A name is taken from the list.

But that happens rarely, and when Thursz is done, there are 120 names still on the list, still presumably on the eighth floor of the B'nai B'rith building. "I think it's going to be a long wait," Thursz says.

Everyone clusters around the television for news bulletins. Afterwards, the room is almost silent and the television becomes a grotesque silent movie of comedies, commercials, singing and dancing.

One woman takes out her knitting. One woman listens to a radio. A girl with a T-shirt that says "Shalom" picks away at a plastic cup. One man puffs a cigar. Another straddles a chair and buries his head in his arms. A woman declines a tranquilizer and gulps strawberry soda. Someone munches tuna sandwiches and ginger snaps. Joking, someone wonders if the hostages will be allowed kosher food.

"They are very quiet and very controlled but the place reeks with fear, anger, and resentment," says a woman bystander.

In the bathroom, a Red Cross nurse took her hair out of pin curls and shook her head "Wouldn't it be awful if they chopped off the hostages' heads and threw them out the window," she says, in a reference to one of the terrorists' threats.

"Fanatics," says one man. "They're crazy," says another.

One young man asks under his breath, "I wonder if there's any talk of exchanging hostages?"

WASHINGTON (AP) — Machete-wielding terrorists, bent on revenge against Black Muslim leaders they blame for a 1973 mass murder, held more than 100 hostages in three buildings today, and threatened to chop off captives' heads unless demands for retribution are met.

Twenty-four hours after the siege began, police and the heavily armed terrorists, some with automatic weapons, were at a standoff. No deadline for meeting of demands had been set by the invaders.

There were indications the terrorists had sufficient supplies to hold out for a time. During a tense night, a man who identified himself as Khalifa Hamaas Abdul Khaalis, leader of the gunmen who invaded and occupied three buildings, talked frequently with reporters by telphone.

Asked if he expected his demand that Black Muslim leaders be delivered to him would be met, the terrorist said, "If they don't, the worst is to come, yet, the worst is to come ... I'm prepared to die."

At midmorning, however, District of Columbia Mayor Walter Washington said hostages were "not suffering, other than being confined." City officials said unidentified diplomats were involved in efforts to negotiate with the terrorists. Abdul Khaalis confirmed he had talked to representatives of foreign nations.

A spokesman for the Iranian Embassy said today that ambassadors of three Moslem countries—Iran, Egypt and Pakistan — had spoken to Khaalis at the Carter administration's request to urge the gunmen to be "compassionate and to see reason." The spokesman said Khaalis had not responded positively to the appeal.

Police said the men were armed with rifles, shotguns, automatic weapons and machetes.

The gunmen all were believed to be members of the tiny, predominantly black Hanafi Moslem sect. They seized the headquarters of B'nai B'rith, a Jewish social service organization; the Islamic Center, a Moslem mosque; and the District of Columbia city hall.

During the takeover of city hall, a black reporter for a Washington radio station was shot to death and a city councilman and three other persons were wounded. Eight other persons were injured during the takeover of the B'nai B'rith building. Three of those eight remained hostages.

One hostage at the District building telephoned radio station WTOP and reported that the group was being treated well, and were provided with cigarettes, food and newspapers this morning. He did not specify where those supplies came from.

Terrorists at B'nai B'rith were based in a cafeteria. Terrorists at the Islamic Center asked that food be sent in.

One official said a package of drugs was being prepared to be sent into the B'nai B'rith building for persons requiring regular medication. A trickle of hostages continued to be released for medical reasons.

The largest group of hostages was being held in the eighth-floor cafeteria of the B'nai B'rith headquarters.

The chief grievance seemed to be the brutal 1973 murders of seven Hanafis, mostly young children, in their Washington home. Five Philadelphia Black Muslims were convicted of the crime and each was sentenced to 140 years in prison.

—That authorities turn over those responsible for the slaying of his children. He named heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali, Muslim leader Wallace D. Muhammad, his brother Herbert Muhammad and former Philadelphia Muslim leader Jeremiah Muslim Shabazz.

—A halt to the screening of the movie "Muhammad, Messenger of God," which was scheduled for its American premiere on Wednesday in New York and Los Angeles. The distributor immediately stopped the film in mid-screening after learning of Abdul Khaalis' demand. Abdul Khaalis said the film was "a fairy tale" that demeaned and distorted the Islamic faith, although few other Moslems have objected to it.

—That authorities turn over the murderers of Malcolm X, who like Khaalis was a member of the Black Muslims before breaking with them.

—The return of a $750 fine assessed against him for shouting at the Muslim defendants during their trial for the 1973 Hanafi murders. Police returned the money Wednesday night.

If terrorists find it offensive

Producer offers to destroy film

NEW YORK (AP) — Moustapha Akkad, producer and director of "Mohammad, Messenger of God," said today he was willing to show his film to the Hanafi Moslems holding hostages in Washington, D.C., and destroy it if they found it offensive.

He said he has informed Washington authorities he was ready to go to the capital, but was told not to and that the film was a side issue.

"I said I'll show it to them and I will destroy the film if it is offensive to them," he said.

Washington authorities also told him not to do anything that might inflame the situation, such as holding a news conference or appearing on television, he said by telephone from a midtown hotel.

The film, depicting the rise of the prophet of Islam, opened in New York and Los Angeles on Wednesday but was withdrawn in midscreening to comply with one of the demands of the terrorists.

Akkad, a Syrian-born Moslem, said the film, which was five years in the making and cost $17 million, was being shown in London and Libya and has been scheduled for Egypt, Syria, Morocco, Algeria and other Islamic nations.

Irwin Yablans, the national distributor of "Mohammad, Messenger of God," said all advertising and promotion has been cancelled.

"When we found out this was a real situation and that these demands were being made, we immediately asked people to leave the theaters (in New York) and did the same in Los Angeles," Yablans said Wednesday, the movie's opening day.

He said he did not know why the Black Muslims would object to the film. "Reaction to the film has been marvelous," he said.

Salah Hassanein, president of United Artists Eastern Theaters, said authorities appealed to him to halt showings at his New York theaters after the leader of the Washington gunmen demanded the movie be withdrawn because he considered it an affront to his Moslem religion.

The movie, which chronicles 23 years in the life of Mohammad from the prophet's spiritual awakening at 40 to his death at 63 in 632 A.D., stars Anthony Quinn, Irene Pappas, Michael Ansara and a Syrian-born actor named Johnny Sekka.

Sekka said in New York Wednesday he was mystified by objections to the movie. "I made the film to bring the story of Islam, the story of 700 million people, to the West," Sekka said.

Wind-driven brush fire still unchecked near Palm Springs

PALM SPRINGS (AP) — An raging brush fire whipped by 50-mile-an-hour winds late Wednesday night encircled the takeoff station for the Palm Springs Aerial Tramway.

Earlier, the blaze forced evacuation of a score of vacationers from the tramway.

Fire fighters from Palm Springs, Riverside County and the state Division of Forestry were battling the blaze, which broke out at 6:30 p.m. in Chino Canyon midway between Highway 111 and the tram.

By 11 p.m., the flames had blackened more than 60 acres.

"The problems being caused by the winds are just unbelievable," said Sgt. Ed Brucker of the Palm Springs Fire Department.

He said the flames were being whipped by steady winds of 40 to 50 miles from the north and south. Some gusts exceeded more than 70 miles an hour, officials said.

Rescuers ferried stranded vacationers to safety before the flames cut off the access road to the tram. The Red Cross was providing food to firemen and civilians.

Brucker said the flames were burning both up and down the canyon, and had forced fire fighters back to the base of the tram by 10:30 p.m.

Shortly afterward, the flames encircled the lower tram station.

KHALIFA ABDUL KHAALIS

Terrorist leader once preached peace

WASHINGTON (AP) — An outraged religious fanatic who once preached peace, now heads a group of terrorists threatening to set up a "killing room" where hostages will be executed and their heads thrown out windows unless demands are met.

The man, born 54 years ago Ernest Timothy McGhee and who now calls himself Khalifi Hamaas Abdul Khaalis, directed the armed, bloody takeover of three buildings here Wednesday. Scores of hostages were taken, one person was killed and a dozen wounded.

"We are fighting for our lives in the name of Allah and a witness for our prophet," says Abdul Khaalis.

"Now you know a crime has been perpetrated upon us, a heinous crime. And nobody spoke up or said anything, offered no condolences. Not even a storefront church."

Abdul Khaalis, angry, shouting at times, abruptly switching thoughts, spoke by telephone with reporters through the day and night Wednesday from his "command post" in the cafeteria at B'nai B'rith's national headquarters. Nearly 60 hostages are being held there.

Abdul Khaalis once preached non-violence and brotherhood and wrote that America should be a country "not based on skin power and gun power." But that was before 1973 when seven members of his Hanafi Moslem sect were murdered in their Washington headquarters. Six of those killed were his children.

At the trial of Black Muslims charged in the deaths, he shouted at the defendants: "You killed my babies! You killed my babies and shot my women!" He was fined $750 for contempt. One of his demands was to get that money back and police gave it to him Wednesday night.

The murderers, the fine, "Zionist Jews" and a movie about the prophet Mohammad were the focus of his warnings and demands.

Asked if he would wait indefinitely, he snapped: "Don't worry, when the heads start dropping out the window, then you worry."

"Heads will be chopped off, a killing room will be set up at B'nai B'rith and heads will be thrown out of windows," said Abdul Aziz from the Hanafi sect headquarters, a Tudorstyle home in the city's upper Northwest section. Aziz, 35, is Abdul Khaalis' son-in-law.

SANBAG officials concerned about 'imported smog' issue

By MAE TATE
PB Staff Writer

Although supporting the objectives of the California Transportation Plan, the San Bernardino Associated Governments (SANBAG) voiced consternation about some facets not considered in the plan — primarily the issue of "imported smog."

In a special letter to the California Transportation Board regarding the February draft of the policy element that, if adopted, will govern transportation planning in the state, SANBAG officials noted seven points of importance to agencies within San Bernardino County.

A main concern of the transportation planning agency, which also doubles as the San Bernardino County Transportation Commission, was the uncontrolled growth in Orange and Los Angeles counties that negatively affects the basin San Bernardino County sits in.

Supervisor Robert Townsend first broached the controversial issue of "upwind development."

"The report refers to San Bernardino County as an impacted area (of smog). The majority of the smog is drifting in from other counties and areas not within our county.

"The smog is coming from Orange County and Los Angeles County," Townsend charged.

The supervisor said San Bernardino can't be the originating source of smog since the county was an impacted area prior to the present growth increase.

Development in the other two counties, coupled with vehicles traveling through San Bernardino County to Palm Springs, Las Vegas and elsewhere, have created an "imported smog" problem for entities here, he added.

Council member Eileen Carter of Chino, SANBAG president, pointed out that development in Orange and Los Angeles counties has already proven detrimental to water quality.

Wes McDaniel, SANBAG's executive director, suggested the section pertaining to short range actions for improving air pollution include "a joint program with the regional land use agency for the development of land use patterns consistent with achieving improved air quality and specific attention paid to growth policy in primary air pollution source generating areas."

The board strongly objected to the California Transportation Board giving only two weeks for the total review and recommendations from the 19-member commission. In addition to the March 16 deadline, the board provided only one copy of the 400 page report.

In a letter to board chairman W. R. Lucius, SANBAG noted, "We feel the review process established by the state transportation board for this draft is tokenism and stands as another example of a lack of desire to respond to grass root local input into formulation of state level policy."

SANBAG officials reiterated their general support of the goals and objectives, but emphasized the "gradual" implementation of the plan.

The board also commended the state agency for putting equal emphasis on the environmental, economic and social effects of transportation planning and implementation decisions.

Other suggestions included:

—Reconsideration of a provision that required all buses be equipped for accessibility to the handicapped. To lock into a position of all buses being equipped with full handicapped accessibility might not be most effective for the provider or recipient of the service, the board noted.

—Federal water quality program planning and transportation planning be jointly coordinated.

—Striking "local communities" from the policy calling for state funding of highways to be consistent with statewide benefits and costs.

The provision stated "when new highways or additional lanes are necessary for regional or local trips, regional or local communities should have the option to choose and the responsibility to fund the preferred alternative."

This provision, said Montclair Councilman Ernest Rowley, could be devastating to local municipalities which could be forced to pay for additional freeway lanes going through their cities, but actually having traffic generated on a regional or intercity basis.

—Include more comprehensive provisions for energy alternative analysis in the plan and establish this process as a permanent part of transportation planning.

—Provide research and development incentives to individual inventors working on energy consumption alternatives, including development of an alternative to the gasoline engine.

—Include economic incentives for personal efforts to use other than automobile transportation.

Webb School presents 'My Fair Lady'

The musical, "My Fair Lady" with Mark Waldrop as Henry Higgins and Elizabeth Biggs as Eliza, opens at Webb School in Claremont tonight at 8.

The cast of 75 includes Gary Harber as Doolittle, Paul Katz as Freddy Eynsford-Hill, Stefan Roger as Pickering with Beth McNulty as Mrs. Eynsford-Hill and Karen Patterson as Mrs. Higgins. The part of Mrs. Pearce is played by Joan Goodfellow.

Tickets are $3 for adults and $2 for students and all seating is reserved.

Pomona shooting suspects released

Three suspects arrested early Tuesday morning in connection with the wounding of two men who were shot down in the 800 block of Hawthorne Place in Pomona have been released without charge.

Meanwhile, the most seriously injured victim, Robert L. Held, 36, a reputed motorcycle gang member, has improved and was reported in serious condition in Pomona Valley Community Hospital. Previously, his condition was termed critical.

Held and a companion, Pete C. Reid, 34, were struck by bullets fired from a passing car. Pomona police said at the time that they suspected that motorcycle gang rivalry may have been the reason the pair was shot.

The three suspects were arrested when they went to the police station to inquire about the incident. All have been released. They are Gregory Bruce Roberts, 32, David Coppock, 27, and Michael James O'Mara, 29, all of Pomona.

Police said no other persons have been arrested in connection with the shootings.

Pomona woman acquitted of manslaughter

A Pomona woman has been acquitted of a manslaughter charge in the slaying Aug. 13 of her reputed boyfriend who was stabbed to death at 11th and Main streets in Pomona.

The woman, Lettia Jones, 26, of 419 E. Fourth St., was ruled innocent by Pomona Superior Court Judge Sam Cianchetti at the close of the prosecution's case. The court's action precluded any defense being offered by the defendant's attorney.

The woman was accused first of murder, and then with manslaughter in the death of Leroy Powell, 29, who was stabbed five times as he sat inside his car. The woman was arrested by police who said they found her near the car when they arrived at the scene.

Detectives said the couple had been arguing, and the four-inch steak knife they found inside the car was suspected of being the weapon used to fatally wound the victim.

Hearing scheduled for National City man

A National City man faces preliminary hearing March 17 in Pomona Municipal Court on felonious charges of child-stealing, statutory rape and child molesting in connection with alleged offenses committed against a 12-year-old Baldwin Park school girl.

He is Ramon Picon Echevesta, 29, a utility company employe. The girl is a Vineland Elementary School student who ran away with the defendant, according to Baldwin Park police reports.

Echeveste was arrested in National City, near San Diego, on a warrant charging him with child-stealing signed by Citrus Municipal Court Judge William M. Martin. He was ordered held in lieu of $5,000 bail.

Authorities charged that Echeveste picked up the girl at school Jan. 10 and took her on a tour of Mexico with stops at Tijuana, Ensenada and San Felipe. She was taken into protective custody at Echeveste's apartment later.

Baldwin Park Detective John Budge reported that Echeveste denied all the charges.

The girl has been returned to the custody of her parents who told Budge their daughter didn't smoke, drink and never had run away before.

Farm labor settlement

FRESNO (AP) — Years of farm labor strife in California appear to be ending with the giant Teamsters Union leaving the fields to Cesar Chavez' United Farm Workers. The two unions, whose confrontations often have erupted into violence, have been negotiating a settlement by which the UFW would have sole organizing jurisdiction in the fields and the Teamsters sole jurisdiction over cannery workers. Chavez and Teamsters International President Frank Fitzsimmons were scheduled to announce the agreement today.

Smaller power plants

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The state Energy Commission has adopted a policy favoring smaller power plants. The policy won a 3-2 vote Wednesday despite one opponent's comment that it would make George Orwell'S "1984" a reality. The small-plant idea was praised by Commissioner Gene Varanini. He said California must hedge against uncertainty by diversifying its energy resources. This involves smaller — and presumably more dependable — plants to generate electricity from a variety of resources for the next 30 to 35 years.

No blackouts expected

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California's top power companies say there shouldn't be blackouts or electricity rationing this summer, despite the drought. But they're saying so with caution. The utilities gave their predictions Wednesday at a hearing of the state Energy Commission. And their spokesmen punctuated virtually every statement with "ifs." One of them said the chance of having to cut power temporarily to any area is "certainly less than five per cent."

RFK assassination probe

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A reexamination of the Robert F. Kennedy assassination produced no indication of conspiracy or a killer other than Sirhan B. Sirhan, says a special counsel to the district attorney. "There was no evidence to suggest that Sirhan B. Sirhan acted within any conspiracy or that there was more than one gunman firing more than one gun," Thomas Kranz said in an interview Wednesday. Kranz, appointed special counsel to the district attorney's office in August 1975, said, "There has to be a reality to how far we carry this 'assassination fever."

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The California Board of Equalization says the average property tax on a $40,000 home is $924.83 this year.

The figures, released Wednesday, showed that last year the same house would have been worth $35,000 and the tax would have been $793.10.

The board said taxable assessed values rose 14.3 per cent to a record $83.7 billion.

Record company troubled

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The granddaddy of Los Angeles record stores, Wallichs Music City, is in financial trouble and management hopes a reorganization of debts may restore life to the jingle, "It's Music City, Sunset and Vine..."

"We're going on like gangbusters," executive secretary Diana Brooks said Wednesday.

She conceded the emergence of high-volume, discount record stores in recent years had meant trouble for Wallichs, which goes back 47 years.

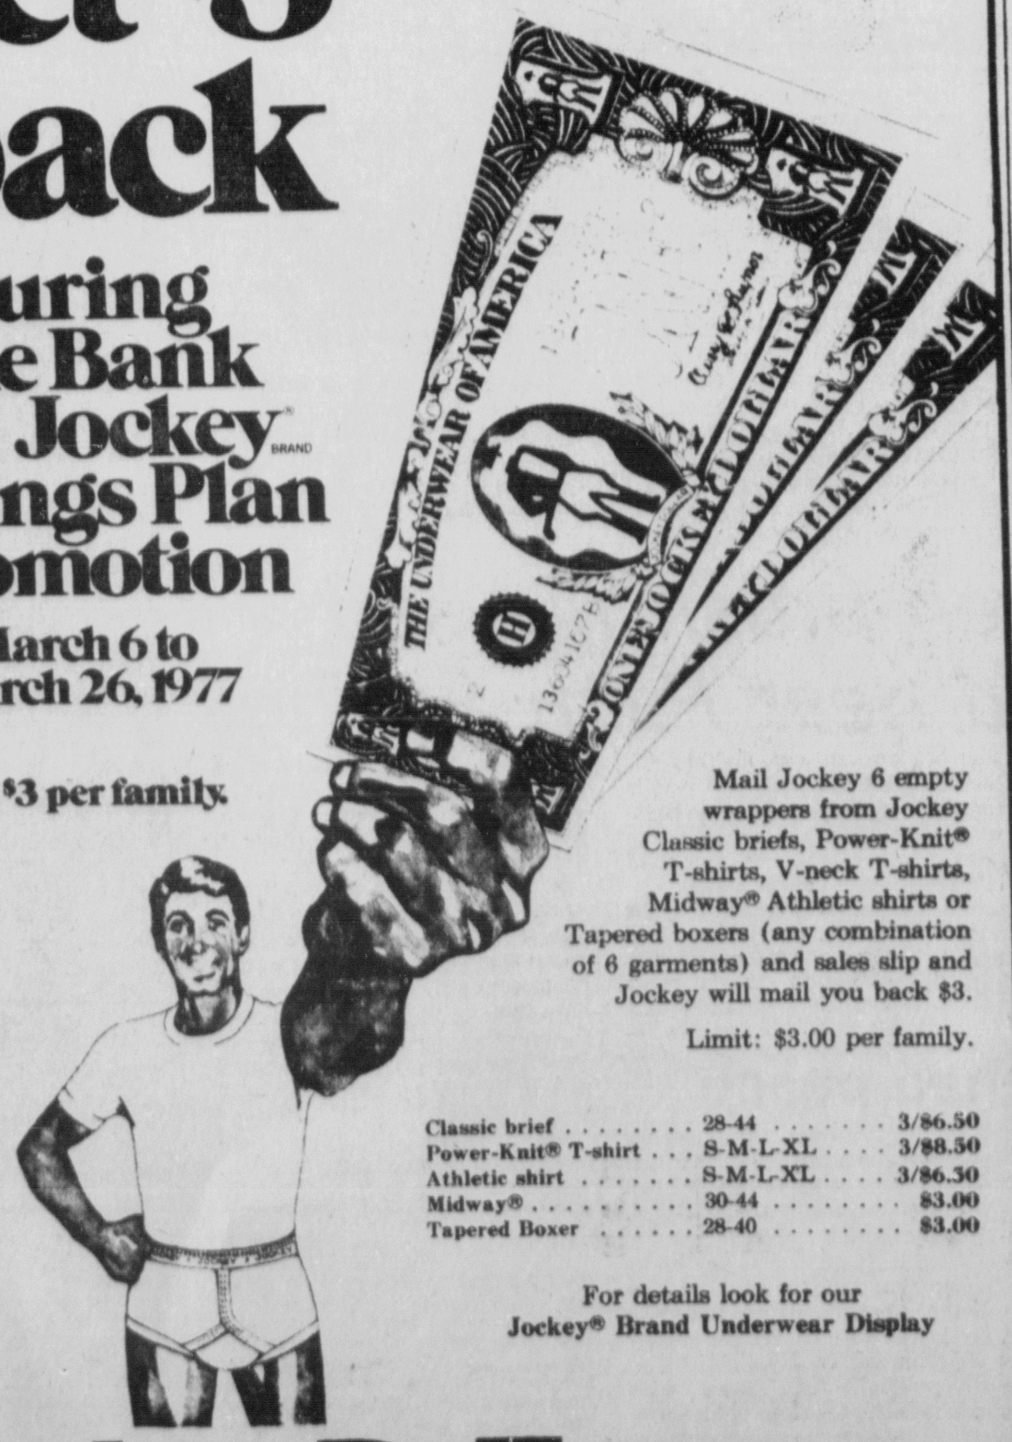

The seven-store chain has gone over to discount record pricing itself, she said, which "has given us a new image."

With its selection of old hits, standards, musical instruments and sheet music, Wallichs was a natural stopping point for teenagers out on Saturday night.

Hostility between 2 black religious groups

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four years ago, seven Hanafi Moslems were assassinated by members of the Black Muslim church. Today, a small band of Hanafi held hostages at three Washington buildings, apparently to avenge those murders.

The 1973 Hanafi murders were just one in a string of violent incidents that have characterized relations between Black Muslims and other Islamic worshipers who disagree about their faith.

The Hanafi Moslems follow a literal interpretation of the Koran and consider themselves the only true followers of Islam. Their membership in the United States is said to be less than 1,000, most of them black. Until Wednesday, they had never been known to engage in violence.

That is not the case with the Black Muslims, now known as the World Community of Islam in the West, based in Chicago. They are a much larger group, founded by the late Elijah Mohammad and now led by his son, Wallace.

The 1973 victims, including five children, were killed in a $78,000 home donated to the Hanafi sect by professional basketball superstar Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, a member of the black-dominated Hanafi group.

Seven months after the 1973 slaying, seven Philadelphia men were indicted for the murders. An eighth man, dead by the time of the arrests, also participated, according to the indictment.

The indictment said the murders were the work of members of the Black Muslims who were angered over criticism of Elijah Muhammad by Hanafi leader Khalifa Hamaas Abdul Khaalis, the self-styled leader of Wednesday's attack.

One defendant, acquitted at the trial, was later murdered in jail, where he was serving time on another case. One had his conviction reversed and his second trial ended in a mistrial. Five others were convicted and given 140-year sentences.

Those convicted were Ronald Harvey, 37, described by federal authorities as a Black Muslim "enforcer," who also is awaiting trial for two more slayings; John Clark, 34; William Christian, 32; John Griffin, 29, and Theodore Moody, 24.

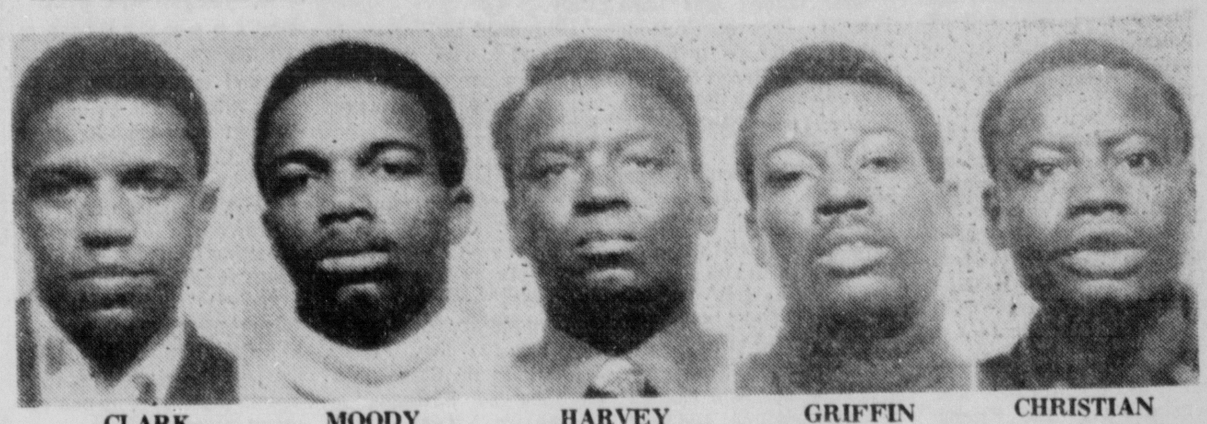

Abdul Khaalis was not satisfied with the justice afforded him by society. Wednesday, he demanded that those convicted of the 1973 murders be brought to him at his siege headquarters.

He told The Associated Press: "They killed my babies. Not one citizen in this city said one thing. Nobody sent condolences; not one congressman. Nobody."

Back at the home which was the site of the murders, a man who identified himself as Abdul Khaalis's son-in-law, Abdul Aziz, said the terrorists wanted to question the 1973 killers to find out who ordered them to commit the murders.

Abdul Khaalis said he knew who it was. He named Wallace Muhammad, his brother Herbert Muhammad, and heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali and said they were "involved." At one point, Abdul Khalis told the AP he wanted all three brought to him.

In Chicago, Wallace Muhammad said, "I have no knowledge of the horrifying massacre at the Hanafi center (in 1973) ... I accept no responsibility."

No strike in valley Catholic schools

By GEORGE MacLAREN
PB Staff Writer

No area Catholic high schools are involved in a strike of lay teachers in four Southern California counties today.

A spokesman for the United Catholic Secondary Teachers Association said that a strike vote Wednesday night passed by a large margin.

The Rev. Msgr. Martin P. O'Loghien at Damien High in La Verne said this morning that all his teachers but one were in their classrooms, and the missing teacher was sick.

Both Pomona Catholic Girls High and St. Lucy's Priory High School in Glendora are private schools and would not be affected by the strike.

The almost 500 teachers voted in May 1976 by a 3-1 margin in favor of representation by the association, an affiliate of the AFL-CIO.

Church officials reportedly have failed to comply with rulings from the National Labor Relations Board which ordered good faith negotiations between the church and the teachers association on a contract.

If there is a strike, schools officials said they would try to run the schools with supervisors, substitutes and members of religious orders.

The strike will affect schools in Los Angeles, Orange, Santa Barbara and Ventura counties.

Abe Levy, attorney for the union, said that "We understand that the school officials want to challenge the right of teachers in the Catholic schools to vote on whether or not they want a union."

The Catholic Church throughout the country is contesting rulings by the NLRB that the constitutional separation of church and state under the First Amendment does not mean church schools are exempt from federal labor laws.

Sweetener saccharin is banned

WASHINGTON (AP) — Diabetics and others who can't eat sugar might be able to get sacchrin as a prescription drug after the proposed federal ban on the artificial sweetener goes into effect.

The Food and Drug Administration announced the ban on saccharin Wednesday, citing a Canadian study that found large doses of the sweetener caused cancer in laboratory rats.

Canada simultaneously banned saccharin.

The FDA said it would take at least 120 days to put the ban into effect, but it called on manufacturers "to discontinue use of saccharin as soon as possible."

In announcing the ban, the FDA said it would consider allowing some limited use of saccharin to continue because no substitutes for it would be available in the near future.

But Acting FDA Commissioner Sherwin Gardner said any decision on the prescription approach was still months away.

Canada said those on restricted diets will be able to buy pure saccharin only in drug stores after Sept. 1.

Diet soft drinks account for three-quarters of the five million pounds of saccharin used yearly in the United States. A spokesman for the National Soft Drink Association said the industry would try to develop new low-calorie beverages without saccharin.

The Coca-Cola Co. said it regretted the FDA's action, but would comply with the request to discontinue saccharin use as soon as possible.

"We will have reformulated low calorie drinks ready for the market" before the FDA ban takes effect, Coke executive vice president Charles W. Adams said in a statement from Coke's Atlanta headquarters.

The Canadian study showed that the sweetener caused bladder cancers in rats fed a diet of 5 per cent pure saccharin for their entire lives.

Three injured in Ontario car crash

Three persons were injured when a car on Euclid Avenue north of Sunkist Street in Ontario sideswiped a second car Wednesday afternoon, Ontario police reported.

Carol Jean Desousa, 25, of 1702 S. Laurel Ave., Ontario, driver of one of the vehicles, was listed in good condition this morning with multiple injuries at San Antonio Community Hospital in Upland.

Her son, Luis Jeffery, 3, was treated and released from the hospital following the 2:30 p.m. accident.

Also injured in the second vehicle was Mary Silva Barcelos, 45, of 6101 Salem Ave., Chino. She sought medical treatment from her own physician.

Police said the Chino woman's car, northbound on Euclid Avenue, started to change lanes when it was sideswiped by the Ontario woman's car, also northbound on Euclid in the adjacent lane.

Woman hurt as car hits culvert

Martha Hill Strickland of 536½ N.Eighth St., was listed in good condition at San Antonio Community Hospital this morning.

Police said the Upland woman apparently was turning on her windshield wipers when her car swerved right, bounced over a curb and crashed into the side of the culvert.

Valley crime

Watchman wounded in leg

A night watchman was suprised inside the Pomona Valley Mining Co. Restaurant at 1777 Gillette Road early today and was wounded in one leg.

Pomona police reported that the victim, Dean A. Wayley, 18, of Pomona, was inside the two-story building's office when one of three intruders threw a rock through the plate glass door and fired several shots at him. One bullet hit Wayley in the leg. Another was found in a cot that was in the office and another was found in a wall.

Wayley said that the three entered the office and held him at gunpoint on his knees while they ransacked desks and file cabinets before fleeing.

The only items known to have been taken were two keys.

The restaurant, which is expected to open sometime in May, is in the hills bordering the San Bernardino Freeway.

The victim said all three intruders were black and in their 20s. One was 6 feet tall, had a goatee and wore a knit cap and dark clothing. Another was 5 feet 7, and also wore a knit cap and dark clothing.

Pomona woman raped

A 26-year-old Pomona woman told police Wednesday night that she was grabbed by two men and raped in a field at Ninth and Parcells streets.

The victim was taken to Pomona Valley Community Hospital for treatment and was released.

The only description of the attackers was that both were white.

Ontario market robbed

A man armed with a snub-nosed revolver held up the Stop & Go Market, 311 N. Mountain Ave., Ontario, Wednesday night of a small amount of cash and food stamps, Ontario police reported.

Police said that the robber, dressed in a sloppy brown jacket, a white T-shirt and Levis, picked up a candy bar and took it to the counter.

The woman clerk started to ring up the sale when the man pulled the revolver.

He was described as being white, 35, 6 feet tall and 190 pounds.

Pleads guilty to holdup of coffee shop

Charles Ray Ervin, 19-year-old Pomonan, has pleaded guilty to several felonious counts in the robbery last September of the Michael J's Coffee Shop in La Verne.

Ervin entered the plea before Pomona Superior Court Judge Sam Cianchetti. His probation hearing and sentencing was scheduled for April 8.

Ervin pleaded guilty to first-degree robbery and possession of a sawed-off shotgun, two of the charges filed against him in connection with the 1:30 a.m. holdup at 2315 Foothill Blvd.

He was accused of being one of three young men who robbed the restaurant and several customers. Ervin was arrested in Pomona after a high-speed chase by witnesses and police from La Verne.

Two juvenile Pomona boys arrested with Ervin were petitioned to Juvenile Court. One, 15, wounded himself in the leg while fleeing from the restaurant, police said.

British prime minister here

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter welcomed British Prime Minister James Callaghan to the White House today, proclaiming a "special relationship" and "unshakeable friendship" between the United States and Great Britain.

The traditional 19-gun salute that welcomes a visiting head of state was omitted from the ceremony on the White House South Lawn as a result of the terrorist siege at Washington's city hall, just two blocks from the White House grounds, and two other buildings.

Katharine Hand

Memorial services for Miss Katharine W. Hand of Pilgrim Place, Claremont, will be held Friday at 11 a.m. at the Claremont Presbyterian Church. Dr. James W. Angell and Dr. Wilson E. Daniel will officiate.

Miss Hand died at her residence on Monday.

She was born April 26, 1897 in New York City, N.Y. She was a graduate of Washburn College in Topeka, Kan. She served under the National Presbyterian Board as a missionary educator in China and Lebanon.

Following her retirement to Pilgrim Place, she worked with the Friend Service Visitation Committee, counseled prisoners at the California Institution for Men (CIM) and described her experiences in articles she sold to a number of national publications.

She also wrote about her experiences in China and Lebanon. Many of her articles concerned hunger which she knew intimately during her imprisonment in the Philippine Islands during World War II.

In recent months, Miss Hand had two books published. They are entitled "Rhymes of Blithe Spirit" and "Lessons from the Little Old School House." A third book, entitled "Meditations on Ancient Wisdom," was written by Miss Hand in collaboration with her late sister, Elizabeth Hand Shrader.

Marjorie Gildea

Marjorie Elizabeth Gildea, a former Chino resident, died Tuesday at Loma Linda University Medical Center following a long illness.

Mrs. Gildea was born Dec. 1, 1913 in Crofton, Neb. She moved to Chino from White River, S. D. in 1936 and resided there until January when she moved to Lake Port.

She is survived by her husband, Joe; two sons, Daniel James of Lake Port, and Harold Holder of Santa Barbara; two sisters, Mrs. Ora Salmon and Mrs. Opal Sarafin, both of Ontario; two brothers, Jack Holder of Riverside and Jim Holder of North Carolina; and four grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held Friday at 10 a.m. at Griffith Mortuary in Chino. Burial will be made at Crestlawn Memorial Park in Riverside.

Friends may call tonight at the Griffith Chapel from 7 to 9 p.m.

George Kelly

George J. Kelly of 734 N. Illinois Ave., Pomona, died Tuesday in a local convalescent home.

Mr. Kelly was born Feb. 23, 1903 in New York. He had resided in Pomona since 1962.

Survivors include his widow, Helene; a son, Richard E. Wiencek of Claremont; a daughter, Mrs. Barbara Crow of St. Joseph, Mich.; 11 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Private services were held with Todd Memorial Chapel Pomona in charge of arrangements.

Funeral

Willard Payne

Graveside services for Willard Franklin Payne of 2252 Kathryn Ave., Pomona, will be held Friday at 2:30 p.m. in the Pomona Cemetery.

Friends may call at the Griffith Mortuary in Chino today from 1 to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m.

Mr. Payne died Tuesday.

Santo Pagano

Santo "Sam" Pagano of Monrovia died Tuesday in Los Angeles following a long illness.

Mr. Pagano was born Nov. 2, 1890 in Piedmonte, Italy.

He moved to Pomona in 1945 and for the following six years operated a shoe repair shop on Mission Boulevard.

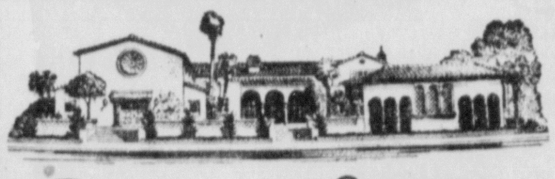

He was a member of the American Legion, a World War I veteran, and a member of the Immaculate Conception Catholic Church in Monrovia.

Surviving are his widow, Rosella I.; two sons, Joseph R. of Chino and Richard of Salinas; a daughter, Josephine Brugge of Salinas; three stepdaughters, Ellen Mauldin and Rosella Mackay of Monrovia and Dorothy Uebbing of New York; three stepsons, Gordon Ziemann of Los Angeles, Neal Ziemann of Newport Beach and Gus Ziemann of West Covina; 11 grandchildren and 14 great-grandchildren.

Rosary will be recited tonight at 8 at the Douglass and Zook Mortuary in Monrovia. Mass will be celebrated Friday at 10 a.m. at Immaculate Conception Catholic Church.

Burial will be in Calvary Cemetery in Los Angeles.

Gunman awaits siege indictment

WARRENSVILLE HEIGHTS, Ohio (AP) — Armed only with a good luck wish from President Carter, surrendered gunman Cory Moore is in county jail awaiting probable indictment on kidnaping charges resulting from his two-day siege at City Hall here.

Moore was jailed Wednesday after receiving a telephone call from Carter. Secret Service agents permitted no one to monitor the call.

But as Moore was taken to the Cuyahoga County Jail in Cleveland in lieu of bonds totaling $200,000, he told reporters, "He (Carter) wished me luck."

As he had said he would, the unemployed ex-Marine surrendered peacefully Wednesday morning after a White House news conference in which Carter mentioned Moore.

Carter admitted that promising to talk to Moore even with the stipulation that he first release the second of two hostages might be setting a "dangerous precedent."

But moments after Carter completed the news conference — which Moore was watching on a television he had swapped earlier in the siege for 17-yearold hostage Shelley Kiggans — Moore freed police captain Leo Keglovic, 49, and gave him the two handguns he used to keep police at bay for 45 hours.

Moore began the siege at the suburban Cleveland municipal office complex on Monday afternoon when he fired three shots from a .38 caliber revolver and took Keglovic and Miss Kiggans, a city employe, into a nearby room.

Moore did not eat, drink or sleep for the duration of the siege. He spoke frequently on the telephone.

Early in the takeover, he demanded that whites leave the Earth or at least burn all their money. For a while, he insisted that Carter broadcast an apology for the way blacks have been treated in America since 1619.

Keglovic, a father of five who appeared weary but relieved when he faced reporters outside City Hall, said the whole dilemma was a result of the fact that Moore was able to buy "that lousy $37 gun" at a department store.

He said he was able to talk freely with Moore about his black and human rights philosophies, but he was "absolutely" convinced that Moore would kill him if it was expedient.

Police said Moore would go before the grand jury on the two kidnaping charges. Maximum punishment for the state charges is 25 years on each count and up to $1,000 in fines per count.

Police said no federal charges were contemplated.

Romania leader scoffs at U.S. quake warning

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — President Nicolae Ceausescu discounted American warnings today of a possible second earthquake and said Romania would keep its economy on schedule despite heavy losses.

He put the latest death count for last Friday's quake at 1,387, of whom 1,240 died in Bucharest, and predicted the number will rise by several dozens more in the capital.

Of a total of 10,500 injured, 2,280 remain hospitalized, he said.

Rescuers continued to find survivors among the ruins five days after buildings collapsed over them. The official news agency Agerpress reported well-known actor Cascadeur Aurel Popescu was rescued Wednesday and 22-year-old Livia Negulescu was found alive 127 hours after the quake.

"It seems a miracle, but five days after the seism in Romania, human lives continue to be rescued from under the ruins of big buildings collapsed in the center of Bucharest," the agency commented.

Referring to a U.S. Geological Survey report that the history of deep quakes such as occur in Romania indicates "another large earthquake may occur within weeks or months," Ceausescu told a news conference:

"As usual, scientists make forecasts. The supositions of those in the United States are not very well grounded — based on a few data which are not very reliable. Maybe the American scientists did not have access to more accurate information."

"It is difficult to suppose — of course, no one can be absolutely certain — that another major catastrophe will occur in the near future," the Romanian president and Communist party chief said.

Ceausescu, stressing his theme of national dignity and independence, said, "We have not requested anything from anybody."

"Of course, we would appreciate it if the friendly countries ... supplied us with machines and equipment," he added. "And we would be looking for advantageous loans. This would be very helpful... I would include the United States in this."

Mideast peace effort—Carter

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is promising a major American effort to convene a Middle East peace conference in Geneva before the year is out.

Carter, who met with Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin this week and plans sessions with Arab leaders in the next month, discussed the Middle East situation at a broadcast news conference Wednesday.

He said he could envision a settlement in which Israeli forces might be authorized to go beyond their country's established borders to protect against sudden Arab attacks.

He also mentioned the possible use of international forces to patrol a demilitarized zone extending for 20 kilometers or more beyond Israeli borders.

"I will be discussing this matter with the representatives of the Arab countries when they come," Carter said, adding he and Rabin spent part of their time together on the subject.

Admitting the search for a Middle East peace settlement "is going to be a long, tedious process," the President pledged "to mount a major effort in our own government" to bring the parties together in Geneva in the last half of the year.

In other topics at the news conference, Carter said he will continue U.S. Air Force operations in Korea "over a long period of time," but plans to withdraw ground troops ther. He announced restrictions on travel by Americans to Vietnam, North Korea, Cuba and Cambodia would be lifted March 18.

Diamond Bar MAC studies property taxes

By DAN NIEBRUGGE
PB Staff Writer

A potential increase in the property tax rate for Diamond Bar residents of anywhere from $1.47 to $1.97 per $100 assessed valuation was outlined to the Diamond Bar Municipal Advisory Council (MAC).

W. Rex Vance of the Los Angeles County Chief Administrator's Office told an audience of about 30 persons at MAC's regular meeting at Chaparral Intermediate School that a proposed county service area being brought before the county by the City of Los Angeles could result in a significant tax increase to unincorporated area residents. The increase could mean an additional $250 to $450 in taxes on a $60,000 home.

The dispute is based on Los Angeles city's historic stance that city residents of the county subsidize services to residents of the unincorporated areas, said Vance. He told listeners it is the city's contention that county residents pay for and receive county police, fire, parks and recreation and planning services. City residents pay the same county taxes but receive none of those services in L.A.'s viewpoint, said Vance.

While Los Angeles has been in and out of court on the matter, the most recent ruling has put a court decision in abeyance until the city exhausts all of its legislative channels to correct what it sees as an error, said Vance. The city is now calling for the creation of the county-wide service area to force unincorporated area residents to pay for these "extended" services which, the city argues, are now being paid for by both the city and county residents with no benefit or service to city residents.

Essentially, the measure represents a tax shift. While county unincorporated area taxes would go up, county taxes to city residents would go down in the city's estimation. Vance said Los Angeles city sees this as a means of having the county residents pay for their police, fire and other services while city residents pay only for their own. All of the 78 cities in the county have endorsed the plan, said Vance. He said Los Angeles claims establishment of the county service areas would mean a reduction of 20 cents in its tax rate.

Vance said that while the full ramifications of the proposal are still unknown, some have speculated that should the areas for county service taxes be created, the tax increases in those areas would still have to be approved by a vote of the people. If that happened, an area which voted against the tax increase could, theoretically, be left without any county services such as sheriff protection or fire protection.

Another area still in question is whether one service area for all unincorporated county land would be created, or if several different areas would be established.

The proposal will come before the county's Local Agency Formation Commission (LAFCO) at a special hearing sure to attract wide attention on April 13, said Vance. If LAFCO approves the plan — as many expect it will — the proposal then goes to the board of supervisors which will be required to initiate action to form the county service area. Between Aug. 1 and Sept. 1 the supervisors will hold public hearings on the subject.

Vance said Diamond Bar can head off the special tax by fighting and winning, annexing to a neighboring city or incorporating.

Vance said that many persons have speculated the issue will eventually be settled in court. He explained that the county service area law was initially adopted in 1953 to provide a voluntary means by which a given community in the unincorporated area could obtain increased county services above the norm by declaring itself a county service area and adopting a higher tax within that area to finance the increased service.

REAGAN PERRY

D.B. scout advances to Eagle

Reagan Perry, 13, of Diamond Bar will advance to the rank of Eagle Scout Wednesday during a court of honor at the Northminster Presbyterian Church in Diamond Bar.

Scoutmaster Mike O'Grady will head the ceremony, scheduled to start at 8 p.m.

Reagan, an eighth grader at St. Joseph's School in Pomona, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Perry. He is a member of the California Junior Scholarship Federation and plays soccer on an AYSO team in Diamond Bar.

He joined the Cub Scout program in 1971, and earned the Arrow of Light as a Webelo. After advancing to the Boy Scout program in 1974, he served as assistant patrol leader, patrol leader, and is now assistant senior patrol leader for Troop 732.

His merit badges include sailing, beekeeping, basketry, oceanography and lifesaving. He also earned his "mile swim" award.

His Eagle project was the design and construction of teaching aids, consisting of puppet theaters, puppets and insect cages, for the Hacienda-La Puente School District's child development center.

Reagan won a camping scholarship last summer for his scouting progress and has attended Boy Scout camps at Sea Aquatics in Newport Beach and Cherry Valley on Catalina Island.

Claremont favors Juvenile Diversion

By GEORGE MacLAREN
PB Staff Writer

The Claremont City Council has signified that it favors continuation of the Pomona Valley Juvenile Diversion Project, but how much money the city will give to support the project will have to wait until budget time.

Three councilmen voted in favor of the project, but acting Mayor Claire McDonald abstained because she would like to see more background information on the project.

The council also voted to ask the Claremont Unified School District for equal support. The two agencies have a joint meeting scheduled March 28.

Councilman Frank Hungerford, who also is chairman of the project board, told the council that the project's funding ends June 30, and that it is very difficult for the project staff to plan if it doesn't know how much money will be coming in.

Hungerford explained that the board is asking that each city give $1 per capita funding as a means of continuing the project. For Claremont that would be $25,000.

He suggested that if the city went on a 50-50 basis

Small Business Administration workshop slated for March 30

The joys and pitfalls of starting a new business will be discussed in depth during a day-long Small Business Administration (SBA) workshop on March 30.

This is sponsored by the U.S. Small Business Administration, the Service Corps of Retired Executives and the Pomona Chamber of Commerce.

The day-long session will be held in the Pomona City Hall, boards and commission room from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Registration will begin at 8:15 a.m. A $2 registration fee will be charged.

The workshop is part of a plan designed to make SBA programs more accessible to existing and prospective small businessmen and women of the area. The primary focus will be to explain the key factors necessary for success in owning a small business.

Specific topics scheduled to be discussed will include taxes, site location, management, legal requirements and marketing and advertising. Leading the discussions will be both businessmen and SBA staff members.

At the conclusion of each workshop segment, question and answer sessions will be held.

Information presented at the workshop will be of importance to both new owners and prospective owners of all small businesses, regardless of the specific type of enterprise.

Supervisor Townsend receives service award

Robert O. Townsend, chairman of the San Bernardino County Board of Supervisors, has received the U.S. Department of Labor's Public Service Award for his work as a member of the executive board for the Inland Manpower Association (IMA).

The presentation was made at a recent IMA meeting by Harold Deem of the Department of Labor's industrial relations department. The award is "in recognition of outstanding efforts to advance the welfare of America's working men and women."

Townsend served two years as vice-chairman of IMA executive board, which controls local spending of more than $24 million in federal funding. Among the fourth district supervisor's accomplishments on the executive board are:

—West End Multi Service Center, a branch office in Ontario for the administration of IMA programs.

—Pre-psychiatric technician training, a entry level course designed to assist individuals in meeting prerequisite for further education.

—Los Padrinos, an on-the-job training program in retail business.

—Trade Winds, a work experience program in the marine construction trades.

Juvenile Diversion...

with the school district, the city's share would be $4,000 plus federal matching funds.

Acting City Manager Paul Brotzman explained that the project provides for a grouping of cities working together which makes it more attractive to state and federal agencies giving grants.

Larry Rubin, project executive director, told the council that 15 per cent of the referrals in the past 2½ years were Claremont youngsters.

Rubin said that he had just returned from Sacramento where Juvenile Diversion had been granted $50,000 by the California Youth Authority, of which $6,000 will go to Claremont Human Resources office to pay for two interns and to help establish a parent education program.

Rubin explained that one youngster is served for every $300 that Claremont puts up, and that the project has had an 80 per cent success rate.

Councilman Richard Newton said that the project sounds like a worthwhile thing, "but we must look at our budget first, and see how much we can afford."

Donrey donates to scout facility

The Donald W. Reynolds Foundation has donated $20,000 to the Boy Scouts of America, Old Baldy Council, for a dining facility at a scout camp in the San Bernardino Mountains.

Funds will be used to construct a dining hall with a capacity to serve 200 youths and to remodel the existing kitchen at the Holcomb Valley Scout Reservation.

The scout camp serves about 7,000 youths, ages 8 through 18, from the valley. It is located three miles north of Big Bear Lake.

The dining facility will be named the Donald W. Reynolds Dining Hall. Reynolds is president of the Donrey Media Group, which owns the Pomona Progress Bulletin, the Ontario Daily Report, and other newspapers throughout the United States.

Lockheed

builder of all the Navy's submarine-launched ballistic missiles

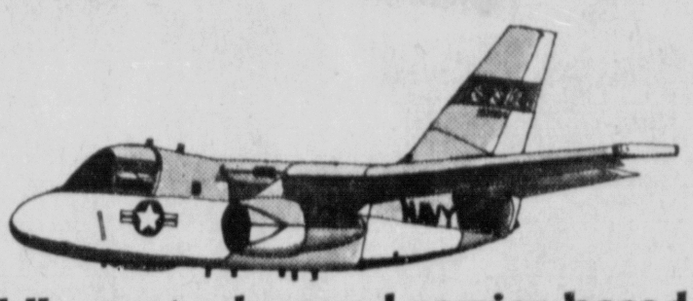

builder of all the nation's big airlifters in the last 20 years

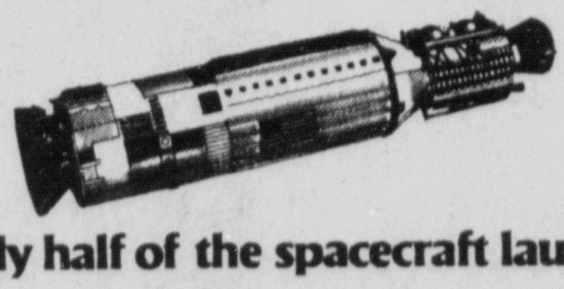

builder of the world's quietest big jetliner

is a different Lockheed today.

One of America's pioneer aviation and aerospace companies has been quietly going about the business of making some necessary changes. And the emerging structure of today's Lockheed is a clear demonstration of the intent—to build a new management philosophy while leaving untouched the superb technological talent that has always been an enormous national asset.

• A new Office of the Chief Executive was formed last year. It consists of the chairman of the board, the vice chairman of the board and chief financial and administrative officer, and the president and chief operating officer. Since then four additional outside directors have been elected to the Lockheed board. This places outside board members in the majority—10 out of 17.

• While the new management has worked to insure the continued success of existing Lockheed programs, it also is dealing with the task of insuring continued success of Lockheed in the future. Today the planning and implementation is well underway, and some of the results are already visible.

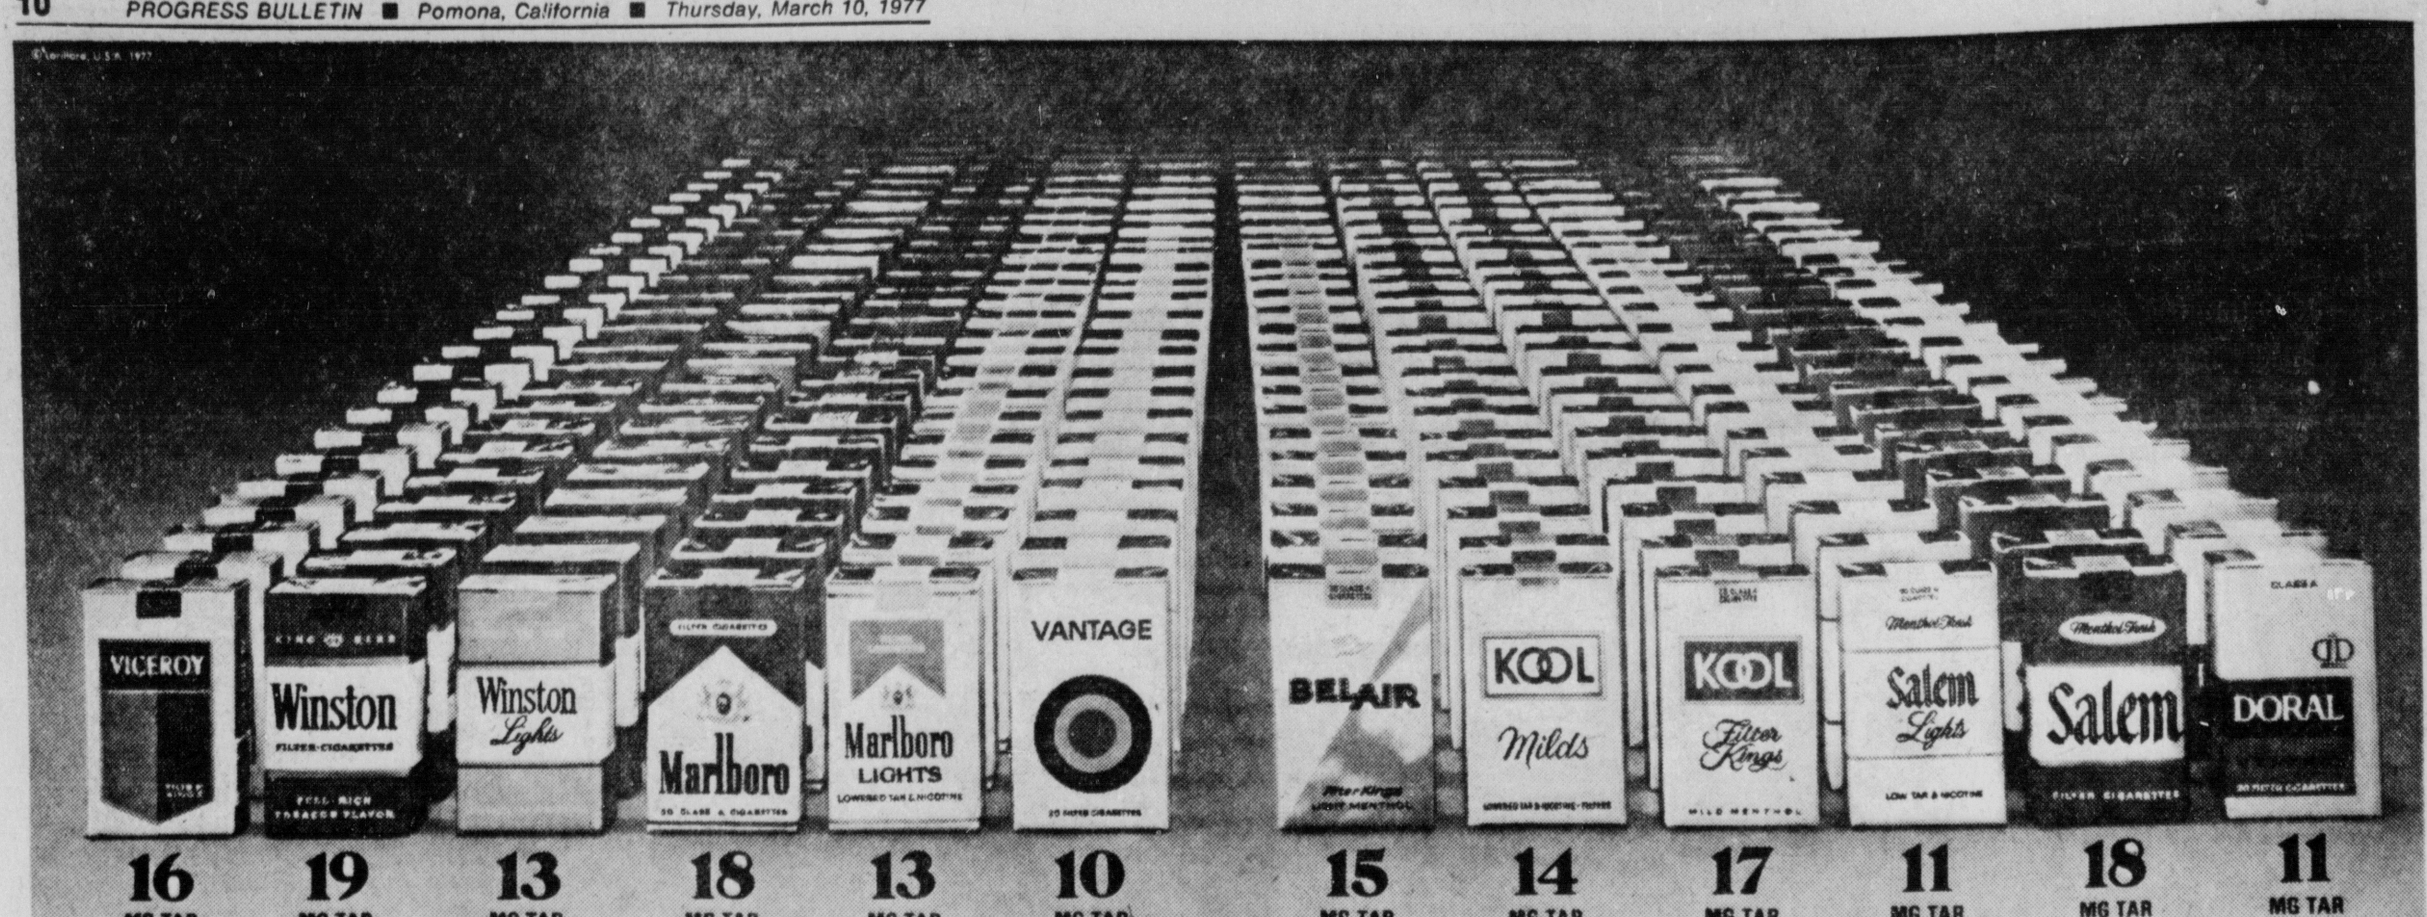

• A number of major marketing successes have occurred in recent months. Australia, Canada, Iran and Saudi Arabia placed large orders for Lockheed aircraft and various management services. British Airways chose the new long-range TriStar. These orders made 1976 a record year for foreign sign-ups, with a potential value exceeding $2 billion.

• Guidelines have been put in place to insure that Lockheed conducts its worldwide business in a manner that meets the highest standards of this nation and the other countries in which it operates. To this end, the corporate management has adopted stringent new policies for the selection, use and payment of international agents and consultants.

• A favorable refinancing plan has been approved by Lockheed's banks, and gains have been made in strengthening stockholders' equity. Debt reduction is progressing. The Government-guaranteed loan has been reduced from a peak of $245 million to a current level of $80 million—a total repayment of $165 million thus far.

The dedication of Lockheed's 55,000 workers to excellence is higher than ever. One of the most important goals of Lockheed's management in years to come will be to match that dedication to excellence—in technology, in manufacturing, in the way Lockheed conducts itself everywhere.

An invitation to cities

Supervisors call for cost cut

By BOB NAGEY
PB Staff Writer

The Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors has issued an invitation to cities here to help hold down spending and, if possible, cut taxes next year.

The board urged the cities to study the proposed county budget in April and to send representatives to hearings in Los Angeles at which time they can suggest "meaningful cost reductions."

Supervisor Baxter Ward said it now appeared that the austerity measures of last fall "were paying off" and that there probably will not be a tax increase in the county budget during the next fiscal year.

"In view of this, I ask that the board contact all cities to request that they join us in minimizing the property tax impact."

Ward also urged the cities to examine the proposed budget and to "make recommendations to us as to which items they feel should be amended or deleted during our June deliberations."

Supervisor Peter Schabarum said that while he was in basic agreement with the move, he felt the budget predictions, prepared by Chief Administrative Officer Harry L. Hufford, were a "very conservative prognostication of the financial picture."

He said he would go along with Ward, but "I don't want to leave the impression that I'll be satisfied with just holding the line. I strongly feel we have the tools to reduce the tax rate by 20 to 25 cents."

The current rate is $4.45 per $100 of assessed valuation.

Schabarum said there was a good chance that many of the cities may tell us to "bug out of their business."

A similar point was made by Supervisor Kenneth Hahn who felt the cities might get the wrong impression over the invitation.

"When we ask the cities to come and examine the budget and show us where to cut, some might say 'Why should the supervisors ask us to do their work?' " he suggested. "What if all 78 cities asked the CAO to explain the budget to them one by one?"

Ward explained one purpose of his motion was to hear from those cities which have been "issuing broadsides at the county. It would be most helpful if those cities would make their views known before the budget is adopted."

Hufford told the board last week that the county budget could be balanced without a tax increase if the austerity program continued.

The program calls for a reduction in the county's work force, a 2¼ per cent cut in expenses, and a freeze on capital expenses.

Ward said cutting the county spending has been a "very difficult task," but one which might serve as an example to other taxing bodies.

New homeowners in San Dimas to be informed

By BOB SWETNAM
PB Staff Writer

New homeowners in San Dimas will soon benefit from a plan that will require all residential developers in the city to provide home purchasers with information regarding local laws, taxes, deed restrictions and appliance guarantees.

The plan, called the "awareness package to protect homeowners investment," is expected to increase a homeowner's consumer awareness of the home he buys.

City officials said the idea originated in San Dimas from meetings of the Development Plan Review Board which oversees the early planning stages of residential and commercial developments.

The program will require developers to furnish home buyers with a comprehensive package to include details of certain city ordinances that may affect the homeowner, such as tax areas, vehicle parking restrictions, plus slope maintenance mandates, warranties, instructions and guarantees for all appliances and a highlight of all deed covenants, conditions and restrictions.

A proof of receipt of the awareness package, signed by the homeowner, is required of developers after each home is sold.

San Dimas Vice-Mayor Terry Dipple said the requirement is not intended to create a heavier burden on developers, but to respond to contemporary concepts of consumer awareness.

Most developers appear to like the concept, he added.

Rancho Cucamonga plan gets LAFCO endorsement

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

Plans for a new city formed in the foothills called Rancho Cucamonga moved a step closer to reality Wednesday.

The San Bernardino County Local Agency Formation Commission (LAFCO) adopted a resolution endorsing the proposal to incorporate Alta Loma, Cucamonga and Etiwanda as one city.

LAFCO had indicated on Feb. 9 that it favored the tri-communities plan over another proposal to incorporate Alta Loma by itself. The issue has been controversial, with citizens favoring each proposal airing their views at the earlier meeting.

The recommendation by LAFCO will be sent to the county Board of Supervisors for final action. Before supervisors can consider it, however, residents must circulate petitions asking for endorsement of the tri-communities plan.

Voters would have the final word on Rancho Cucamonga in an election tentatively set for November.

The new city would have a population of 25,000, 32 square miles and assessed valuation of $130 million.

There was little controversy at Wednesday's meeting, since LAFCO had earlier endorsed the tri-communities proposal.

The only discussion centered on providing fire protection for the Edison Co. steam plant which will be part of the new city. Incorporation would eliminate the plant on Etiwanda Avenue from County Service Area 38, and the city would have to resolve the fire protection problem, LAFCO decided.

LAFCO's staff had proposed annexing the steam plant to the Foothill Fire Protection District, but various LAFCO members disagreed with the plan. It would mean a new tax rate would be assessed the steam plant.

"We don't have rights to impose a tax rate, that's between the fire district and the Edison plant," said one LAFCO member.

A spokesman for the Edison plant said, "It's no fun being a problem for people. We want to negotiate our own terms for fire protection with the city."

LAFCO finally voted to allow the city to decide the steam plant problem.

Other parts of the resolution favoring incorporation called for dissolving County Service Area 50 (park and recreation district), thereby leaving the city the task of providing those services.

LAFCO's staff proposed a city tax rate of 36 cents to provide street lighting, park and recreation and weed abatement services. That rate would be determined later.

Laughter elected new Walnut mayor

By DAVID READER
PB Correspondent

Councilman Richard Laughter was elected to a one-year term as mayor of Walnut by the Walnut City Council Wednesday evening. He won by a 3-2 vote over fellow Councilman Joseph Nahn, who then was unanimously elected mayor pro tem. Laughter previously has served as Walnut's mayor in 1973 and 1974.

By a vote of 5-0, the council approved the implementation of a pilot program that will have local residents organize into a neighborhood crime watch, with particular emphasis on burglaries and vandalism.

The program, called the "Neighborhood Improvement Program," will be initially put into effect for the 135 homes surrounding Lemon Creek Park for a period of six weeks.

If the project proves successful in that area, it would then be implemented on a city-wide basis of fiscal year 1977-1978.

The council also approved City Manager Vern Lawson's recommendation that the city take part in the federal-funded CETA program for its one year duration. Walnut will receive $20,000 from the government for the hiring of three people to do manual labor.

Those hired must be able to meet stringent unemployment requirements and be residents of Walnut.

N.Y. woman searches for her daughter

Mrs. Thelma Baldes of New York City has returned to Pomona seeking her daughter whom she has not seen in 20 years.

Mrs. Baldes lost contact with her daughter, Jeanne, not long after they moved from Pomona in 1955. Jeanne attended Roosevelt Elementary School and Emerson Junior High School.

Mrs. Baldes said her daughter would be in her middle 30's and that she may be residing in the Pomona area. Anyone knowing the whereabouts of Jeanne is asked to contact Mrs. Baldes who is staying temporarily at the Deluxe Motor Lodge at 915 W. Holt Ave., Pomona.

Airport commission didn't want to delay report, construction

BY MAE TATE
PB Staff Writer

Inaccurate minutes played the principle role in a special meeting of the West Valley Airport Land Use Commission (WVALUC) Wednesday night.

The WVALUC clarified its position on the environmental impact report (EIR) for the expansion of Ontario International Airport. The commissioners — Chairman Ernest Rowley of Montclair, Councilman Pete Garcia of Chino, Ontario Councilman Beecher Medlin, Upland Councilman William Bottin and Supervisors Bob Townsend and Joseph Kamansky — made it clear that they had not intended to delay the final EIR or the beginning of construction at the airport to alleviate the noise impact upon surrounding communities.

The advisory group's action was threefold. It asked that the Los Angeles Department of Airports proceed as "expeditiously" as possible with phase one and two of the project described in the EIR as the construction of a runway south and parallel to the existing runway, 10,000 feet in length, and extend the present runway an additional 2,200 feet to the east.

Secondly, it recommended that phase two and three — the latter calling for an eastward addition of another 1,800 feet to the existing runway — and that the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) make the adjustments to the EIR at a later date when necessary.

The third and final action — encouraging the fourth phase of the Department of Airports' noise abatement program which would extend the runway 6,000 feet to the east of the present airport property — was the most pertinent.

A separate EIR would be necessary for this fourth stage.

In December, the commission took action to move the description of the four-phase program from where it thought it was in the appendix. At that time, members merely supported the ultimate consideration of the final phase with a second EIR.

However, the minutes identified the program as the "ultimate project." And complications set in.

According to attorneys for Ontario and the Department of Airports and legal counsel for WVALUC, identification of this as the ultimate project would delay the expansion indefinitely.

John Jacques, San Bernardino County planner, explained that the commission's action to bring the four-phase program forward in the report was stimulated by the desire "to bring greater visibility to the program."

James Pearson, assistant city attorney for the City of Los Angeles, said the mistake in the minutes has been brought to the attention of the FAA. Although the cutoff date for comment on the draft EIR was Jan. 31, Pearson said the agency would probably accept a correction from the WVALUC as to its original intent and action.

Gusty winds are expected to die down

Gusty winds which encircled the valley for the past two days are expected to die down tonight without causing major damage to the area.

The winds raised havoc in the mountains where the velocity reached 60 miles an hour, and in the desert areas of San Bernardino and Riverside counties where motorists traveling major highways were reporting pitted windshields.

But the immediate Pomona area apparently was spared.

The National Weather Service predicted that gusts of 35 to 40 miles an hour would continue for most of the day and would bring clear skies and warmer temperatures Friday.

The heavy winds from the northwest were taken as a signal for a change in the weather. The weatherman said a low pressure condition will follow with a chance of some rain north of the valley by Sunday.

Today's high was expected to be about 65, with a low of 42 tonight and a high reading of 70 Friday. There will be no smog.

More election results

Upland board

Upland school board will have three new members following Tuesday's election.

William Hutson, the only incumbent seeking re-election, was defeated, while Diana Ross Hunter, Dale Owen Andersen and Robert Ellis were elected to fill the three open seats.

Mrs. Hunter, a county program coordinator, was top vote getter. She received 1,946 votes. Andersen, a teacher, received 1,897 votes, and Ellis, also a teacher, 1,887.

Cucamonga board

Two incumbents, David Hernandez and Luis Gonzales, have won new terms on the Cucamonga school board.

They will be joined by Manuel Luna, who won the third open seat. Defeated in his attempt for re-election was L. Harlan Lee.

Central bond

Voters in the Central School District in Cucamonga approved a bond issue to provide $10 million in additional school facilities by a vote of 1,261 to 447.

Passage required a two-thirds affirmative vote. The proposition authorizes issuance of $2.5 million in local bonds and approval to obtain $7.5 million in state loans. This is expected to increase property taxes by 11 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

Claremont to ask RTD to slow down buses

The City of Claremont will ask the Southern California Rapid Transit District to have its bus drivers slow down when they drive north on Bucknell Avenue.

The family of John E. Murphy, 268 Bucknell Ave., complained to the City Council this week that Bucknell Avenue is a poorly maintained, unimproved street, and that RTD buses virtually force all other traffic to yield to their presence.

They further complained the buses are extremely noisy because they accelerate up Bucknell's grade, and are intolerably noxious because of their exhaust.

Bucknell Avenue inherited the RTD buses as a loop for drivers to end and start their routes after residents of Green and Olive streets complained to the city that the RTD buses were speeding on their streets.

The city contacted RTD which rerouted the buses to Bucknell Avenue and Santa Fe Street.

Acting Mayor Claire McDonald called the Bucknell route "the lesser of two evils. It's a bad choice either way. You're going to have to be patient."

Acting City Manager Paul Brotzman told the council the city's petition to withdraw from the RTD has been sent to the newly-formed Transportation Commission, but that he has received word that the commission won't be ready for several months to consider the request.

"I don't see us getting out before summer," he said. "It's a long, slow process."

Upland man re-arrested

An Upland man has been re-arrested on suspicion of murder involving the slaying of two Cucamonga men during an altercation on Feb. 19.

The suspect, Michael Olivas Serrano, 21, was first arrested by San Bernardino County sheriff's detectives after he surrendered to a Montclair police officer on Feb. 20.

He was then accused of fatally shooting Joe S. Hernandez, 56, and Ralph Urtiaga Rodriguez, 27, both of Cucamonga, near 24th and Center streets in Cucamonga.

Less than 72 hours after he surrendered, Serrano was released pending further investigation. Serrano again surrendered himself to detectives Tuesday and was immediately arraigned in the Cucamonga Justice Court.

Serrano was ordered to appear next week for a preliminary hearing. He is being held at the San Bernardino County jail.

Pomonan kills self

A young Pomona man, despondent over personal problems, shot himself to death in front of a friend's home in La Verne early today, police said.

The victim, Ricky James Comeau, of 2445 Neptune St., was found by friends inside his car parked in front of 1944 11th St. shortly before 3 a.m. They took him inside the house where he was pronounced dead.

Police said Comeau shot himself in the head with a single-shot 20-gauge shotgun. A note was discovered in the victim's car.

If you saw the accident on the Ganesha Blvd. overpass, at the West Access Road from the San Bernardino Freeway, on December 1st, at approximately 3:30 P.M., will you please call 593-1953 after 6:00 P.M.? Thank You.

Fulfilling the D.B. promise

The vote in the Pomona Unified School District election on Tuesday was two to one against the transfer of north Diamond Bar students to the Walnut School district.

By their vote, the majority of Pomonans have made it clear that they want north Diamond Bar to remain as part of the Pomona school district. Their taxes helped build three elementary school plants and a junior high school in north Diamond Bar, and a yes vote on Tuesday would have constituted a giveaway of that property to another district.

If Pomona people mean what their vote has said for them, they will insist that the Pomona school board start right now to acquire a senior high school site that will serve both Diamond Bar and the Phillips ranch area which is about to explode with new houses.

Further, the school board should start planning the high school itself so that it will be ready when the enrollment has grown to the point where it is warranted.

We won't dwell on the many efforts of the school district to acquire a high school site in Diamond Bar but we do know that the developers and builders, who have been promising the residents a high school for years, have not been overly cooperative in the negotiating process.

The time is right for the developers of Diamond Bar and Phillips ranch to put their best foot forward in dealing with the board of education on a high school location.

Pomona people can do their part and vote for a bond issue if that is required to purchase the land and put up a high school.

For too long the problem has been ignored. The issue cannot be shelved any longer. The alternative is that Diamond Bar will be back with another proposal next year to secede from the Pomona district. We should all work together to see that this action is not necessary.

Chino chicano youth stereotyped

Dear Editor:

The intent of this letter is to inform and balance the record. In the Pomona Valley, Chino chicano youth have been stereotyped as hoodlums, and gangster types. We, the writers of this letter, refute that generalization. As chicano youth and young adults of Chino, we have been able to live constructive and lawful lives.

There is an element in the Chino community that is disruptive and has been so brazen as to disrupt the entire Pomona Valley. To assume that this element "represents the youth of the Chino barrio" is a grave mistake.

We, the undersigned, have made and continue to make mistakes. However, we accept these mistakes as our own and "take our lumps." We ask if you are aware that the negative attitudes in some of Chino's youth are because of their inability to accept responsibility for their own actions. The continued negative publicity that dominates the news might lead you to conclude there is only one aspect to the chicano youth.

The characteristics and mannerisms of any group of growing people represent the interaction of individuals, "Chino chicano youth" exhibit the same type of "growing pains" as do any group of young people, yet some overreact and cause problems for all of us.

We do not ask you to ignore or pardon the trouble makers. On the contrary, we ask you to identify them specifically so that the general public can separate them from the larger contingent of dedicated good citizens who represent the largest part of Chino's chicano youth.

Our attitudes and performances bear out that we are striving for the privileges and rights that good citizenship has to offer. We have made a concerted effort not to attack, but only to bring out our opinions about the roles and labels that may be attached to us. We would also recommend that if there are others that feel a need to express their concerns, they should join us in exercising the right to express opinions to parents, local papers, public leaders, teachers, police department, etc.

We as youthful authors of this letter have been involved in various activities as, Chino high sports, Our Lady of Guadalupe Church, city recreation sports, Community Action Council, and voluntary recreation programs. We appeal to you in hopes that you will become actively aware of and concerned about the stigma attached to the Chino chicano youth brought forth by the actions of a few.

Just in jest

Boy do we go all out in this country with learned studies on how to improve the lives of criminals! Latest in a long list of such efforts is a report put out by the Michigan Department of Corrections in which it is stated that a fresh coat of bright paint on their quarters could help prisoners endure their stay behind bars. Among the colors recommended by the earnest souls responsible for that study were Sunspot, Light Coffee and Old Irish. — Well la-de-da and lipstick blue! Pardon me while I take time out to regurgitate! And to further add to my feeling of frustration, I am also well aware that most studies such as that are taxpayer financed. Is there no longer such a thing as equal rights for criminal victims in this country? Have any of those bleeding hearts who are responsible for the hundreds of such criminal rehabilitation studies ever given a second thought to the possibility of determining how the lives of victims of crimes can be made more bearable?

The difference between government officials at the local level as compared to those at the state level is usually evidenced by the way state level politicians invariably have the ability to think big. Thus while in certain cities in the west end of San Bernardino County the city fathers are wrestling with the problem of whether to allow bingo games in their communities, a Southern California state assemblyman has fearlessly introduced a bill to legalize mule racing with parimutuel betting.

Trimming the public payroll

By EARL G. WATERS

Charging that "middle income people are becoming economic slaves to bureaucracy," Assemblyman Bob Cline has called for "a systematic reduction of state employes."

His initial effort to compel trimming of state payrolls, contained in AB 160, nevertheless was rejected by the Assembly Committee on Public Employes.

What Cline had proposed was, according to him, "not a meat-axe slashing of qualified employes" but a requirement that the governor effect an overall 5 per cent reduction of state workers over the next five years.

"Growth in government employment is the fastest growing segment of employment in California, both at state and local levels, and unless it is curbed our citizens will be forced to pay ever increasing tax burdens to support the bloated bureaucracy," he said.

He added that "tax reforms, tax shifts, loophole closing or whatever political synonyms the mind can devise" will have no real relief for taxpayers unless government spending is curbed.

In support of his bill, Cline presented figures compiled by Legislative Analyst Alan Post which reflected the growth of the state payroll.

It showed that in 1960 when the population stood at 15 million, state workers totaled 101,000. By the time the population had grown to 20 million 10 years later the number had expanded to 179,000. Today, after only a small population gain to a total of 21.5 million, state workers have increased to over 213,000.

As Cline pointed out, 20 years ago the state employed one worker for each 160 citizens and now hires one for each 100.

His ratio exhibit, however, is just the tip of the iceberg. For, it does not reflect the numbers payrolled by the taxpayers at the local levels, let alone the federal employes. When those are added to the state the totals give a far more frightening ratio of tax eaters versus tax revenue producers. If other non-producers such as those on government pensions and welfare are included Cline's concern over government spending and its effect on those privately employed crystallizes.

For the post WW II years up to 1970 the population explosion served as a convenient excuse for government at all levels to pad the payrolls. But, despite the practically no growth pattern of the past seven years the rate of increase of state workers, and undoubtedly those in local government, has shown only a slight slowing. In fact the gain in numbers in the face of hardly any population growth has been one half that which occurred while the population was jumping from 15 to 20 million.

It gives the lie to the contentions that more people automatically require more public employes. In private business expansion of numbers served are often the goals for achieving reductions in ratios of employes per customers, thus resulting in an efficiency reflected in costs of doing business.

Fortunately for the taxpayers Cline, a Republican, is neither alone nor partisan in his concern over ever expanding state rosters. Only a few days ago Sen. Robert Presley, Riverside Democrat, renewed his protests of the past two years of new positions in the budget by urging Senate Finance Chairman Al Rodda to not only slash requests for added jobs but rule tough on proposals for new programs which would set the stage for expanding the state payroll.

Unfortunately for the taxpayers, there ain't enough guys sharing Cline and Presley's concerns.

Restoring the death penalty

For a decade, beginning in 1953 and through 1963, the death penalty was strongly enforced in California. During that period, the murder rate, taking into account the state's growth in population, remained relatively stable.

Beginning in 1964, our higher courts imposed their own moratorium upon the enforcement of the death penalty with only a single execution occurring from 1963 until today.

From 1964 to 1975 the homicide rate nearly tripled, going from 3.7 to 10.4 per 100,000 population, or in raw numbers 2,196 homicides in 1975 compared to 656 in 1963.

To meet the most recent guidelines established by the U.S. Supreme Court, State Sen. George Deukmejian has authored SB-155, which would restore the death penalty for 16 specified types of first degree murders; provide for consideration of any and all mitigating circumstances; and require the courts to expedite trials and appeals, setting a 150-day maximum for the State Supreme Court to decide all final automatic death penalty appeals.

Californians continue to be shocked by higher court decisions which bewilder, depress and enrage them. They are confused because they believe in a democratic form of government, that they are still the source of power in this state and their 67% vote approving the restoration of the death penalty in 1972 should have served as a mandate, not only to the State Legislature, but also to the courts, requiring the return of capital punishment as a part of our criminal code.

All of the recent U.S. Supreme Court decisions hold that the death penalty is constitutional. The people of California after considering all of the arguments for and against it, by a two to one margin, said they believe it is needed, justified and appropriate.

If readers agree that the death penalty should be enforced in California, this newspaper urges them to write to state senators and assemblymen now, asking them to vote for Senate Bill 155 and Assembly Bill 240 and, if necessary, to override Gov. Brown's promised veto of any death penalty law.

A society that respects human life must do everything that it can to protect the lives of its innocent citizens.

FEA ignores consumer ripoff

WASHINGTON — That increasingly precious fuel, petroleum, often lubricates a lot of greedy hands before it trickles down to the consumer.

A favorite scheme is for the oil to be sold back and forth between middlemen, each jacking up the price before it finally reaches the people who burn it. After each conspirator in this "daisy chain" siphons off a profit, the inflated price is passed on to the consumers.

Buried in the files of the Federal Energy Administration is evidence that consumers were ripped off in this fashion for tens of millions of dollars during the Arab oil embargo of 1973-74. Yet despite overwhelming evidence in several cases, the agency has taken no action against the conspirators.

"The level of white collar crime involved in this price gouging could be substantial," warns a confidential memo from the House Energy subcommittee to its chairman, Rep. John Dingell, D.-Mich. "Not only is criminal activity going unprosecuted, but it is enormously rewarding."

In just one case, according to internal government documents, Florida consumers were overcharged at least $3.7 million. A startling $2 million of this "was paid in inducements and commissions to a single individual."

The recipient of this staggering sum was Ray Granlund, a paid consultant for both Florida Power and its fuel oil supplier, Signal Oil and Gas. Instead of having Signal sell its oil directly to Florida Power, Granlund arranged to route it through two other companies.

One firm, Larcon Petroleum of Houston, bought the fuel from Signal for 22 to 32 cents a gallon. Larcon then turned around and charged Florida Power as much as 54 cents a gallon. From June, 1973, to October, 1974, 53 million gallons of oil were sold in this fashion. Larcon was involved in 33 separate transactions.

A second firm, Matrix Properties of Houston, was involved in six of the deals. Investigators say Matrix, a real estate holding company, was "a convenient dummy corporation" to which the fuel was sold.

The enterprising Granlund, it turned out, was pulling the purse strings on both sides of the deal. He not only was a consultant to Signal and Florida Power, but he also had a close relationship with both Larcon and Matrix, our sources say. After the smoke had cleared from the deal, Granlund wound up with $1.5 million from Larcon and another $452,611 from Matrix in commissions.

"On paper, each transaction looks perfectly legal," one investigator told our associate Howie Kurtz. "But once you pierce the corporate veil, you see that the oil didn't really go anywhere. They were just walking the price up so Granlund could make a killing."

There is no question that the Federal Energy Administration had the evidence. An internal document concluded: "There appears to be collusion between several firms and individuals . . . By routing the fuel through Larcon and Matrix, Granlund was personally enriched, apparently at the expense of the customers of Florida Power Corporation." Price hikes of at least $3.7 million were passed on to Florida electricity users.

There were other "daisy chain" operations in other states, yet the energy agency took no action against the offenders. Our sources say energy officials in Dallas and Washington simply were not interested in prosecuting these consumer rip-offs.

The daisy chains don't work as well when oil is plentiful, but when supplies again become tight, the wheelers and dealers will be drawn to the oil like moths to a lightbulb.

Giving it back to the Indians

If they ever make this into a movie, it would have to be a comedy. But the Penobscots and the Passamaquoddys aren't laughing.

And neither is anybody else in Maine. Because this might turn out to be one the Indians win. This time the cavalry is on their side.

It all started out as a big joke when, four years ago, two tiny tribes went on a legal warpath, claimed they were the rightful owners of two-thirds of the entire state, and sued to get it back. Plus $25 billion in damages.

Nobody took such a crazy idea seriously.

They are now, though. Especially since the Justice Dept. has ruled the Indians are right. They had indeed been snookered out of five million acres 200 years ago, and if Maine didn't do something about it, the Federal government would have to.

Well, you never saw such consternation. What this meant was that most of Maine is up for tribal grabs, including vast chunks of timberland, the city of Bangor and at least 100 smaller towns along the fabled rockbound coast.

Overnight, residents began to wonder if they really owned their homes, paper companies worried about where their next tree was coming from, and the governor, a frugal fellow, lay awake nights figuring out where he was going to get the $25 billion.

Municipal bonds fell on troubled times, too. Nobody wanted to sink any money into hospitals and schools on land that might not even belong to the state. And since Indian land cannot be taxed, where would the repayment guarantee come from?

Lawyers for the Penobscot and Passamaquoddy say it's all up to the Great White Father — and Congress — now. And President Carter is already firing up the peace pipe. He's promised to name a special mediator to guide "both parties into an amicable settlement for submission to Congress."

The Indians say this is the least he can do for the tribes that helped George Washington win the Revolution.

If it hadn't been for the Passamoquoddy, they say, the British would have taken eastern Maine and turned the giant pines into masts for the King's navy. And they have a letter to prove it. Somewhat belatedly, in 1784, Gen. Washington sent them a note of thanks.

Then, in 1790, the new government passed a law that no sale of Indian land would be valid unless Congress okayed it first. But four years later, Massachusetts concluded a treaty in which the Passamaquoddy relinquished most of their forests. Legend has it they didn't even get the traditional $24 and a few strings of beads.

Somehow, the government never got around to approving that deal. It was too busy putting down the Iroquois and other hostile tribes on the western frontier.

And that's the basis of the present claim. Which, if it stays in the courts, could turn out to be as complicated, costly and lengthy as any litigation in history.

A Justice Dept. official says it is "potentially the most complex suit ever brought in the federal courts, with incredible social and economic impact."

And so it is. Already a few other tribes are reading the smoke signals loud and clear.

On the tiny resort island of Martha's Vineyard, the Wampanoag Indians want Massachusetts to give them back $20 million worth of land on the sea. Residents have voted approval; now it's up to the state legislature. And on Cape Cod, the tribe has filed to recover $200 million worth of local land.

In Rhode Island, the Narragansett tribe is fighting a legal battle over another land claim, and other suits are pending in Connecticut.

All over the land, state officials are boning up on their history and checking law books. And nobody's snickering any more. Or cracking any jokes about giving anything "back to the Indians."

Ann Landers

Thanks or no thanks for love

Dear Ann Landers: My best friend and I are both 23 years of age. We were married about the same time (last year) to a couple of great guys. Will you please settle an argument?

Myrtle says a wife should say "Thank you" to her husband after they have made love. I say "no way."

I'm perfectly willing to let my husband know he pleased me and that I appreciate him as a lover, but to say "Thank you" for something that should be mutually satisfying seems ridiculous. After all, he is not doing me a favor when he makes love to me, so why should I thank him?

Myrtle says it never hurts to build up a man's ego and this is a great way to make him feel special. What do YOU say? — Divided In Durham

Dear Divided: To each his own. If Myrtle wants to thank her husband to build up his ego — that's her business. If you feel it would be degrading, don't do it.

Dear Ann Landers: In answer to "One With Two Tired Ears," the reader whose friend is a non-stop talker, I suggest she check her friend's medicine cabinet. There is a better than even chance that this mouthy lady is turned on by some sort of medication.

I know what I'm talking about because I'm going through it right now with my mother-in-law. I can always tell when she has taken her "nerve pills" because on those days it is impossible to shut her up. She rattles on and on about everything and anything and no one can get a word in edgewise.

Your comment that people who are shallow and insecure may be compulsive talkers is, of course, true, but don't overlook another possibility — a non-stop talker could be hooked on pills. — Sympathetic in N.C.

Dear Sym.: Thanks for suggesting the alternate possibility. It's a very real one. I hope my readers who are on medication will pay close attention to your letter and, if they recognize themselves, will make a special effort to stem the verbiage or reduce the dosage.

Dear Ann Landers: Every year my husband and I visit his folks who have a lovely home up north. A bachelor uncle lives with them. He is a sourpuss. I never liked Uncle Herman.

Last May we took our dog, King, with us and he bit Uncle Herman three different times. (Nothing serious — no stitches.) I'm sure Uncle Herman must have kicked him or something. King is not vicious. He has never bitten anyone except a mailman who is known to hate dogs. He also nipped a neighbor kid who pulled his tail.

We phoned the folks last night to tell them when we are coming. They said, "Fine, but DON'T bring your dog." My husband is very upset. He thinks his folks should tell Uncle Herman to go visit his sister or brother during the time we plan to be there. To board King out would be very expensive and he doesn't see why we should be put to the inconvenience. What do YOU say, Ann? — Dothan, Ala.

Dear Do: My opinion doesn't count. Your husband has been told by his folks that the dog is not welcome. It's their house and he should abide by their wishes.

You can get bank checks, as you may know, imprinted with any sort of picture on them that appeals to you. An old boy in California liked that notion. He had special checks made up with a photo on each of himself kissing his new bride. He only uses them, he says, to pay alimony to his ex-wife.

SLICED BREAD

Q. "Quick, Louie, when was it that the U.S. Government ordered all bakers to stop slicing bread?"

A. Research reveals it was on Jan. 18, 1943, during World War II. Object was to save manpower.

Q. "Where'd we get the word 'ragtime'?"

A. Probably from "ragging" which is what the early blacks in this country called their clog dancing.

LOVE AND WAR

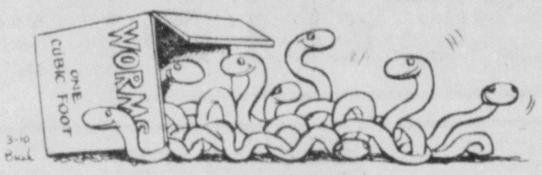

Most men are more intelligent than their wives, Wait, that's not my notion. A university researcher said it. But it doesn't mean men are smarter generally than women. Rather, women tend to fall for men they can look up to in matters of the mind while men are inclined to shy away from women who're obviously brighter than themselves. Thus the matrimonial mates match up in such a manner that the husbands usually have a bit of an intellectual edge on their own wives. Personally, however, I cannot say that I've found that to be true. Not that it isn't true. I just cannot say it, and expect a decent lunch.

Why, you may ask, do not the feet of a four-ton elephant break down under all that weight? Because they're padded on the bottom and laced through with a shock-absorbing elastic gristle that works a lot like crepe rubber. And not only does it cushion on hard ground, but it splays out in mud to keep the big beast from sinking too deeply. Expect more about elephant's feet as demand warrants.

If William Henry Harrison hadn't delivered the longest inaugural address ever made by any U.S. president — one hour forty minutes — it's conceivable he might not have died one month later. Standing out there without hat or coat in the damp cold at age 68, he came down with pneumonia.

Earthworms as house pets

DEAR DR. MILLER: I'm thinking of trying regular earthworms as pets. I've got some inside, where it's not so cold, in a can in some nice, rich dirt, but I think they need more room. How much? And is keeping them inside okay? — W.D.

DEAR W.D.: The common earthworm (in this country that's "Lumbircus terrestris" doesn't need too much elbow room — no elbows — but in one cubic foot of soil you could keep up to 50 worms. No heat, please. These are cool worms, or prefer to be and most in-house temperatures are just too much, although the way recommended room temperatures are dropping, it shouldn't be long before "Home sapiens" with sweaters and earthworms without them, can comfortably inhabit the same room with its below-60 degree temperature.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Is it dangerous to let a dog with a trick knee go without having it operated on? — L.B.

DEAR L.B.: Most dogs who have trick knees (a condition where the kneecap does not always remain in its proper position) never have surgery, though some of them should. There are ways to minimize knee (stifle) joint problems. A canine should be kept lean so there's less weight for them to carry. Exercise should be moderate, and the less turning, twisting, and leaping the better. In the house, slick floors are a hazard. Toy and miniature poodles are among the breeds frequently afflicted with weak stifle joints and they are often, unfortunately, encouraged to stand on their hind legs.

This is to be discouraged since it's particularly stressful for these joints.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Murgatroyd, my Minah bird, is a very expensive pet. The trouble is he craves fruit, preferably fresh from the vine or tree-ripened. Right now he's getting strawberries that are costing me a fortune. I've often wondered, if I paid the price, if I could get tree-ripened bananas for him, because bananas are his favorite fruit. Would you happen to know where I could get such information? — J.W.

DEAR J.W.: Sorry to say I can't give you a referral for tree-ripened bananas. Actually I doubt that there is one. Murgatroyd shouldn't mind, though, since experts indicate bananas actually have a superior flavor when picked green and then allowed to ripen.

Erma Bombeck

A restroom by any name

The American people can — and do — put up with a lotof inconsistencies.

They live in hope that someday there will be a standard battery sold that will fit everything from a camera to an electric football game . . . a one-size-fits-all sweeper bag . . . or a regulation bulb that will plug into any string of Christmas tree lights.

One of the things, however, that they are becoming quite militant about are the inconsistencies in labeling restrooms. This is clearly something that has gotten out of hand in this country with each business trying to outdo the other one in cleverness.

Believe me when I say the most pathetic sight I ever saw in my life was a farsighted woman with her nose pressed against a restroom door, following the outline of a little figure in a hooped skirt.

The restaurants were the first to get cute. In keeping with their decor, they decided to label their restroom door with the appropriate names for women and men. Thus you had Senors-Senoritas, Monsieurs — Madames, Cowboys — Cowgirls, Chiefs — Squaws, and Tarzan and Jane.

Some of the more sophisticated businesses came up with fictional characters like Samson and Delilah, Romeo and Juliet, and Scarlet and Rhett. As I said to my husband one night, "You've been to the restroom. Give me a hint. What am I looking for?"

"Mine was called 'General,'" he said.

"Terrific! I'll try for Motors."

The cutesies we could have lived with, but in recent years they've added a new dimension — the animal kingdom. Finding your restroom is like a romp through Disneyland.

I have literally lurked behind potted faked plants waiting to see who were the bucks and we were the does . . . the heifers and the steers, the stallions and the mares, the chicks or the chicklets, the pointers or the setters.

The other night, a woman rushed frantically back to her table and said, "Here's your dime back and let's go."

"I thought you wanted to use the restroom," said her husband, puzzled.

"And I thought you had to go to LA to see the Rams, but that's before I found out I was a Ewe and that Rams don't need change, and let's get out of here and I'll tell you about it on the way home."

Many causes for a backache

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have been taking five tablets (total of 25 milligrams) of prednisone for the past six years for asthma. My only difficulty in the past has been that I bruise easily, but being 62 years old and quite active I haven't worried about that. Lately my back is giving me trouble.

Fortunately, I am going to a new doctor and he put me on a new medicine and is phasing out the prednisone. Would you have any suggestion regarding repair of my aching back?

DEAR READER — It makes a lot of difference what is causing your aching back. Backache can be caused from arthritis, muscle spasm and cancer, just to mention a few of the long list of serious and not so serious causes for bachache.

Your history of prolonged use of prednisone hormone suggests that you may have degeneration of the spine. Decalcification of the spine with fractures of the vertebrae can be a complication of long term use of any of the cortisone groups of hormones. Anyone taking these hormones for any length of time should have regular evaluations of the bones to see if this is occuring.

It that is what you have it is technically ostoeporosis, the same dissolving bone problem that is common in women after the menopause. I am sending you The Health Letter number 6-10 on this subject. It will tell you about it and what medicines are currently used for it. I would certainly recommend that you take plenty of calcium, an equivalent of one quart of fortified skim milk or fortified low fat milk a day (1 gram of calcium a day). Some patients have benefitted with a combination of calcium, vitamin D and fluoride.

Asthma can be treated effectively with other measures now. Since you have been on prednisone for so long your doctor is wise in gradually phasing it out of the picture. Sudden withdrawl might cause problems.

Calcium, vitamin D and fluoride treatment is discussed in The Health Letter, along with exercises. In your case I think you had better get your doctor's approval for any exercises you do before you start any program. Others who want this information can send 50 cents for it with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope. Just send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Many years ago I suffered from headaches similar to those of the man you wrote about in your column. After many years of suffering and treatments, I finally went to a dentist who said the points of my lower teeth were hitting the cushions of the upper teeth in the wrong place. He checked my bite and with my permission filed the points off my lower teeth. There was no pain with this. I am now 67 years old and still have the same lower teeth but have not suffered from headaches from that day.

DEAR READER — The man in my column had migraine headaches which are different from the type of headaches you were experiencing. Headaches have many causes.

Nevertheless, your letter makes an important point — dental problems can be one cause for some headaches. Individuals with headaches of unknown cause should have a dental examination as part of the evaluation to try and find the cause of — and hopefully the cure for — headaches.

Astrographs

By Bernice Bede Osol
For Friday, March 11, 1977

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Conditions are generally favorable for you today, but you may overlook some small but important factor. Consider the whole picture.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) It's to your advantage today to be close-mouthed. If you have something good going for you, don't announce it to the world.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Things will go well today if you don't place your interests above those of the people who helped you get to the top.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Grand phrases are of little value to you today. What counts is what they pay, not what they say.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't count pennies with pals today. Even though they don't ante up what you expected, be understanding or at least compassionate.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) In financial matters today, your judgment is likely to excel that of your mate. Try to make her understand you're considering everyone's good.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It's virtually impossible for one to gain the approbation of all. What you need to know today is that you CAN win!

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) As long as you move prudently today, you'll have no financial problem. Departing from the norm could bring quite different results.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Be a booster of your old friends today. Nothing will be gained by rattling skeletons.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 Jan. 19) Substantial accomplishments are possible today provided you are able to work alone using your methods.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You're quite capable today — with the exception of estimating costs. Some of your projects could run over budget.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Success is likely today because you are both persistent and resourceful. Leave no loose threads and your victories will be complete.

Your Birthday, March 11, 1977

Advancement is a strong probability this coming year. There is a top spot waiting for you if you're a go-getter.

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

Today's hand shows two excusable errors in the bidding and one almost inexcusable error in the play that made up for them.

South's one-heart opening and North's one-spade response were both correct, but South should rebid two diamonds rather than one notrump. You don't bid notrump when you have a worthless doubleton in an unbid suit if you can find any other bid. South had a perfectly good two-diamond call.

Still he had a reason for bidding notrump. He was an excellent dummy player and wanted to be the declarer if anyone played notrump.

North should have given a jump bid of three hearts in spite of South's notrump rebid. But North knew that his partner liked to play notrump, had opened the bidding and rebid one notrump and North was looking at 13 high-card points with at least one honor in each suit.

West got off to the normal lead of his fourth-best club and expert South saw that he had exactly eight top tricks and no play for nine unless he could steal a diamond so South hopped up with dummy's ace of clubs and led the four of diamonds.

East who had been paying little attention to anything played low. South won the diamond trick and cashed out the other eight.

Ask the Jacobys

A Virginia reader wants to know if hearts ever were the highest-ranking suit.

Not at contract, but in the early days of auction the order of rank of suits was hearts, diamonds, clubs and spades. The spade suit was moved to the top around 1910 and has stayed there.

Story of notorious 'welfare Queen' unfolds at theft trial

CHICAGO (AP) — A welfare official has testified that a woman dubbed the "Welfare Queen" and accused of assuming a myriad of identities to receive welfare payments drew more than one payment at a single office in 1973 and 1974 by using two different names.

Linda Taylor, 49, specifically is charged with theft of about $8,000 in Illinois public aid money and with perjury between October 1973 and November 1974.

The testimony at her trial came from Memra Taylor who is supervisor of the Auburn Park office of the Illinois Department of Public Aid and is not related to the defendant.

Earlier, Linda Taylor's lawyers unsuccessfully sought a mistrial on grounds that publicity had prejudiced the jury.

Public officials have called Miss Taylor "the biggest welfare cheat of all time," and former California Gov. Ronald Reagan referred to her during his presidential campaign last year as an example of the need for welfare reform.

Judge Mark E. Jones denied the adverse publicity motion after interviewing each juror in his chambers.

The supervisor testified that Miss Taylor told her that her father had deserted her and her family, and said that Miss Taylor was given an emergency payment even though she lacked proper identification.

Miss Taylor's alleged bilking of welfare funds over the years has been underscored by reports of the Illinois Legislative Advisory Committee on Public Aid.

The committee's executive director, Joel Edelman, said Miss Taylor, "is without a doubt the biggest welfare cheat of all time.

"Our investigations several years ago showed that from early 1973 until mid-1974, she used 14 aliases to obtain $150,000 for medical assistance, cash assistance and bonus cash food stamps. She went from district to district. She had a collection of wigs and was a master of disguise. She organized people and upwards of 100 aliases were used," Edelman said.

He said the names were turned over to the Public Aid Department to check but there was no word on how many of the names were canceled from the welfare rolls.

Miss Taylor originally came to the attention of authorities when two Chicago police detectives working on their own time learned that she was drawing aid under a variety of names. At the same time, she reportedly owned three cars and four South Side buildings and was planning a Hawaiian vacation.

Miss Taylor's lawyer has told the court that his client was being blamed for bad management by the Department of Public Aid.

"This 'welfare queen' syndrome was an effort by the State of Illinois and the Department of Public Aid to cover up their own frailties," he said.

Undercover agent testifies

Alien smuggling 'pipelines' revealed

WASHINGTON (AP) — An undercover government informer, hooded to shield his identity, told a congressional subcommittee Wednesday how he paid $575 to be smuggled from Tijuana to Los Angeles and thence to Washington.

The informer, speaking in Spanish, said it was not difficult for Latin Americans who wanted to enter the United States illegally to find their way into one of several well-established "pipelines" the government says are smuggling aliens into the country.

Speaking in Spanish, he said he made his way to Tijuana and made contact with the smugglers, agreeing to pay them $275 to cross the border. He was housed with about 90 others who wanted to enter the United States, he said.

One night he and 14 others made their way to the border with a guide and walked across. On the American side, cars picked them up. They hid in the trunks.

They made their way to Los Angeles, he said. There, he paid another smuggler $300 to drive him across the country to Washington, which government officials say is a major destination for illegal aliens from Latin America.

He made the trip in the back of a camper with 27 others. He said it was crowded and uncomfortable. In Washington, he tipped off authorities and they arrested the smugglers, who have pleaded guilty to harboring aliens and received two-month sentences.

Using a masked witness was a tactic the subcommittee chairman, Rep. Joshua Eilberg, D-Pa., said he hoped would attract public attention to the illegal alien problem.

The outgoing head of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service, Leonard Chapman, testified that no one knows exactly how many illegal aliens make their way into the country each year in search of work, although the INS believes the number is very high. The INS caught 866,000 illegal aliens in 1976, he said.

Eilberg is sponsoring legislation that would, for the first time, penalize employers who knowingly hire illegal aliens.

Hispanic-American congressmen generally oppose the legislation, fearing that it would result in job discrimination against Spanish-speaking people by employers fearful of the law or would require legal Hispanics to carry special identification cards.

Eilberg said he did not know how best to minimize job discrimination, prevent widespread identity checks, and still cut down on the number of illegal aliens holding jobs in this country.

Electronic 'sunshine' offered

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Keith, Russell and Roy Anderson decided a year ago that they wanted to do something in memory of their late father.

So the three Milwaukee brothers began dropping in at hospitals, nursing homes and other institutions to deliver a tape recorder, cassette tapes of popular stories and earphones.

Keith, who makes most of the deliveries around the country, said about 40 electronic gifts have been given so far to institutions picked at random. He estimated their value at around $8,000.

"We don't like to give money," he said. "You just don't know where it is going to go and sometimes it is just not used right."

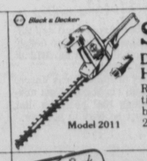

The brothers, partners in three Milwaukee appliance dealerships, believe their gifts provide recreational opportunities for patients who sometimes have no other resources.

D.A. probe finds none others linked to Sirhan

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The district attorney's reinvestigation of the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy has found that Sirhan B. Sirhan, convicted in the killing, acted alone, radio station KNX reported today.

"There was no evidence to suggest that Sirhan acted within any conspiracy or that there was more than one gunman firing more than one gun," Thomas Kranz, special counsel to the district attorney, told the station.

Kranz said he based his conclusions on the original investigation, grand jury hearings, Sirhan's trial, independent investigations, and scientific evidence including the refiring of the murder weapon by seven court-appointed ballistic experts last year.

Kranz said his 250-page report, due for release soon leaves some unanswered questions, but those questions arose after the shooting.

A district attorney's spokeswoman said the report will be released in a week to 10 days. She said the report was completed in August, but she blamed staff cutbacks for its delay in printing.

KNX said Kranz believes his investigation is on firmer ground than the probes into the John F. Kennedy and Martin Luther King Jr. assassinations because of eyewitnesses, Sirhan's apprehension at the scene and his subsequent trial and conviction.

Kranz, a Beverly Hills attorney, was appointed special counsel by the district attorney to conduct an independent reinvestigation of Kennedy's assassination.

Kennedy was mortally wounded in the kitchen pantry of the Ambassador Hotel in Los Angeles on June 5, 1968.

Sophia held by customs

ROME (AP) — Customs police held actress Sophia Loren overnight for questioning about her husband's finances, then let her fly to their home in Paris today.

The 42-year-old star was detained for nine hours at Rome's international airport. Police sources said she was interrogated in connection with an investigation into tax and currency activities of her husband, movie producer Carlo Ponti.

Carter backs picketing at building sites

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration has endorsed legislation that would permit unrestricted picketing at building sites, saying it will help bring economic stability to the construction industry.

Laoor Secretary Ray Marshall told a House Labor subcommittee that President Carter "has advised me" that he will sign the legislation if approved by Congress.

During his presidential campaign, Carter pledged to labor unions that he would sign the so-called common situs picketing bill but would not lobby for its passage.

In prepared testimony, Marshall said the bill would grant construction workers the same picketing right workers in other industries now have.

Construction unions, he said, are prevented "from bringing to bear upon their employers the full economic pressures which are available to union members in other industries."

Marshall conceded that it would tend to encourage more unionism in areas now heavily unionized but said that in other areas where unions have less strength, that trend would likely continue.

He said the legislation contains "a multiplicity of safeguards" to assure that picketing rights will be exercised responsibly and assures "the rights and interests of the public" and protects against possible adverse economic impact on small construction projects.

In addition to permitting unrestricted picketing, the legislation includes provisions designed to stabilize bargaining in the construction industry.

The AFL-CIO is fighting hard to get the legislation through Congress, which passed it last year only to have President Gerald R. Ford veto it after an outcry from conservatives and industrial contractors.

Ford's labor secretary, John Dunlop, resigned as a result. The National Association of Manufacturers and other business groups renewed their fight against the bill this year.

Judge says no forced busing

SAN DIEGO (AP)—A judge ruled against forced busing in San Diego public schools, saying it might lead to more segregation than now.

Superior Court Judge Louis M. Welsh ordered school officials to come up with a desegreation plan by June 13, however.

He said 18 elementary schools, two senior high schools and three junior highs in San Diego, the ninth largest U. S. city, are racially segregated in violation of a recent decision by the California Supreme Court.

The decision by Welsh came after a four-month trial in a lawsuit filed 10 years ago by Larry Carlin on behalf of his daughter and 11 other students.

Welsh ordered school officials to come up with "reasonable and feasible steps" to make enrollments constitutitional but said "busing could possibly lead to resegreation and lead minority children into a harmful situation."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Groucho Marx says he is feeling no pain and is having a good time during his hospital stay after surgery to insert a new right hip joint, a family spokesman said Wednesday.

The 86-year-old comedian, who entered Cedars-Sinai Medical Center last Friday, quipped, "I'll do anything to miss my cook's food."

He had complained of pains in his leg while having dinner with actor Elliott Gould and it was diagnosed as a floating fracture of the hip.

Following the operation, he sang the vaudéville tune "Show Me a Rose" to Gould, who had helped bring him to the hospital.

His son, Arthur, and a grandson, Andy, visited him at the hospital Tuesday, along with his close friend, screenwriter Nunnally Johnson.

The spokesman said Groucho said he was not bothered by pain and was having a good time.

An interview with Rosalynn

First Lady lets her hair down

WASHINGTON (AP) — When President Carter is weighing some important policy decision, he doesn't have to ask his wife for her advice.

"I tell him what I think," says First Lady Rosalynn Carter.

In an exclusive interview this week, the First Lady also said she disapproves of couples living together without being married because "I'm kind of old fashioned about things like that."

She said she wouldn't hesitate to send one of her children to a psychiatrist if necessary, and that she hopes her daughter, Amy, will receive sex education both at home and at school.

And she doesn't serve liquor at the White House, she said, because "I just don't want to. Not for religious reasons. I just don't want to .... Besides, I'm saving the taxpayers' money."

In her first interview since becoming First Lady, Mrs. Carter offered a glimpse into her family's new life, her goals and dreams.

Sitting behind a cluttered desk in her small quarters on the opposite side of the White House from her husband's grand Oval Office, Mrs. Carter cupped her chin in her hands and talked for some 40 minutes about both foreign policy and personal concerns.

Mrs. Carter, who has an interest in mental health programs, said no one in her immediate family has had psychiatric care, but if one of her children needed it, "I'd seek it for them. Of course, I would."

As for 9-year-old Amy's sex education: "I hope we can talk to her at home. I hope she'll get it at school. I think it's very important, but I haven't thought about at what age it should begin."

She said that even if criminal penalities for smoking marijuana were removed, she wouldn't want her family or friends to use it "because not enough research has been done to see how harmful it is."

And if someone were to light up in the White House?

"I would disapprove," she said.

The President said last week that the taxpayers are not paying for the Carters to live in the White House and Mrs. Carter expanded on that. "Every bit of food that is served to the family and to our guests is paid for out of our personal funds," Mrs. Carter said.

She added that the Carters pay for their clothes and such items as dry cleaning, but said she has no idea how much the family spends a week for food. She still hasn't received her food bill for February.

"We eat things like ham and turkey casserole," she said. "And today (daughter-in-law) Annette asked if we could have spaghetti one night. We don't eat steak and roast beef every night."

Asked if the Carters are supporting their two married sons and their families, Mrs. Carter said, "Jeff helps pay for everything. Chip works part-time for the Democratic National Committee, and Jimmy pays Chip out of his personal funds because he needs him. Chip's a great help. We give him a check every month. Jeff and Annette have worked and saved money, and they use their own money. We pay for food."

Jeff Carter, 24, is a student at George Washington University. And Chip Carter, who will be 27 next month, makes about $8,000 at the Democratic headquarters. His wife, Caron, had a baby this month.

Mrs. Carter said her goal as First Lady is "for every person who needs mental health care to be able to receive it close to his home, and to remove the stigma from mental health care so people will be free to talk about it and seek help. It's been taboo for so long to admit you had a mental health problem."

As honorary chairwoman of the President's mental health commission, she plans to travel around the country meeting with professionals, parents of mentally afflicted children and possibly patients.

"If we can get them all working together for the same goals, then we can draw up legislative proposals to give to Jimmy so he can get them implemented for us," she said.

She said she also is concerned about the elderly. "We're trying to work out what we can do to call attention to their needs," she said.

Mrs. Carter will continue to lobby for passage of the Equal Rights Amendment, but she is not sure if it will become law. "If it's not ratified, I guess we can get it introduced again and start over. But it's so discouraging," she said.

Asked how she can ask the news media to ignore Amy, then take her places where she will be in the public eye, Mrs. Carter snapped:

"She has always been in the public eye. Amy was three when Jimmy was elected governor. We took her everywhere with us. She often hated to go, but we'd let her take a book. She doesn't pay any attention to the publicity. She doesn't read newspapers; she doesn't watch the news, and she has learned to ignore reporters."

Mrs. Carter said her daughter doesn't receive an allowance and that her responsibilities include picking up her toys and her books.

"We let her go to state dinners because we like her to be with us. We don't make her go. She always says she doesn't want to, then when she sees me putting on a long dress, she decides she wants to put one on, too," Mrs. Carter said.

Amy takes books to the formal occasions, because "she's fidgety and can't sit still." Besides, Mrs. Carter asked with a smile, "If you were going to that kind of party, wouldn't you like to take a book?"

Asked about foreign policy, she is guarded. But she said she and her husband talk about world problems in places like Uganda.

And she said she doesn't know whether the CIA should make secret payments to foreign heads of state, but "I do know there are some things that should be kept secret."

"I don't know whether I think they should withhold the information they have, but I do think they should determine the world situation when they print a story," she said.

She doesn't keep a diary, "but Jimmy has a tape recorder and talks into it on weekends. He's been after me to do it, and I'll have to start because there are so many interesting things going on."

Asked what her greatest dream would be, Mrs. Carter paused for a long moment before saying simply, "We all dream for a full and productive life for our children."

SPEAKS OUT — Mrs. Rosalynn Carter gestures during an interview at the White House. The two areas where she said she plans to be the most active are programs for the mentally ill and elderly.

Alcoholism harmful to drinking women's offspring

Study supports discarded theory

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — As early as the 18th century, doctors warned that alcoholic women risk giving birth to feeble-minded children. The warnings were dismissed as unfounded.

But it was the dismissals that were unfounded, says Dr. Jaime Frias, director of the University of Florida birth defects center.

A national study by Frias shows that mental retardation is among the defects in the offspring of women who drink heavily during pregnancy, he said.

"From the clinical data now gathered, it can be stated accurately that a woman who drinks alcohol chronically during pregnancy stands a 50 per cent chance of having a child with some degree of mental retardation and 30 per cent chance of having a child with additional multiple physical malformations," Frias said.

Documented defects, he said, include crossed eyes and small eye openings, smaller than normal head circumferences, cleft palates, ear abnormalities and some forms of congenital heart disease.

Other recent studies have shown that alcoholism among American women is on the rise, with women comprising about half the alcoholic population of 10 million persons.

Frias' conclusions are based on a review of more than 50,000 pregnancies in which babies were born defective and followup checks of the children through age 7.

Frias said he found that heavy drinking ranked second only to German measles in causing environmentally induced birth defects.

Four children, each born to a chronic alcoholic and having defects fitting the general description of the alcohol syndrome, have been studied at the university over the past two years, he said.

"All four of the children referred to the University of Florida needed to attend special education classes because of retardation," Frias said.

He said that all four were short children, unable to catch up on growth as do most children whose birth weight is below normal.

Frias said that previous experiments showed malformations in offspring caused by alcohol in fish, guinea pigs, chickens and mice.

The nationwide study is taking a close look at alcohol-induced malformations in humans to gain better understanding, he said.

"Present evidence does not favor the hypothesis that the fetal alcohol syndrome is caused by malnourishment, which often is secondary to alcoholism," he said. "The causative agent appears to be within the alcohol itself."

Frias said the study funded by the National Institute of Health was started in 1959 and at least 12 birth defect centers took part.

Youngsters 'set straight' on alcoholism

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — When teachers decided to teach the kids at Wonder Park School about alcoholism, they first had to unteach some stereotypes.

"The first time they had a speaker they thought he would stagger into the classroom," said teacher Carolyn Peter.

The teaching effort was aimed at meeting school district requirements on alcohol and drug abuse education.

Ms. Peter, one of two teachers who handled the program, began by asking: "How do you feel when you see a drunk?"

"Compassion and pity" led the responses of fourth graders. "Fear and disgust" was the majority view of the fifth and sixth graders.

But since the program began, the children's "attitude change has been pretty incredible. We know it works for the kids," she said.

Teachers found when the course started that the children thought of alcoholics as "drunks on Fourth Avenue." Now they have learned that street drunks represent only two per cent to four per cent of the problem.

"They learned there even are teachers who are alcoholics," Ms. Peter said.

She says guest speakers have been an important part of the program, with children asking frank questions.

"The children wanted to see some women alcoholics, to hear people's stories and find out what it was like to be an alcoholic, and what made them stop drinking," according to Ms. Peter.

Some asked a recovered alcoholic, "How did your children react? Could they have done anything to help?"

They were told, "It's just up to children to let parents know they love them, and that it's (alcoholism) a sickness."

In one part of the course, the children wrote Dear Abby-type letters, and other classmembers answered them.

One letter asked what to do if a boyfriend wanted a girl to have a beer. The girl wanted to say 'no' but didn't know how to do it without losing her boyfriend.

One child answered: "Tell him: 'No thank you, I'm not thirsty.'"

Another said: "You should stay away from people like that."

A third said "I think you should if you don't want to lose your boyfriend." That answer shows how hard it is for children to resist peer pressure, says Ms. Peter.

But there's no doubt the program helps, says Barbara Hoffman, director of the Anchorage Council on Alcoholism. "It is a really interesting way to teach alcohol and drug information, and it will save a lot of teenagers a lot of pain," she said.

Appointments to UC OK'd

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The state Senate has confirmed Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s first three appointments to the University of California Board of Regents.

Easily confirmed were former Ronald Reagan aide Verne Orr and UC Santa Cruz professor Gregory Bateson, both on 36-0 votes.

But there was opposition to Vilma Martinez, president and general counsel for the Mexican-American Legal Defense and Educational Fund, because she had said she didn't mind campus bike shops serving the general public.

Jaworski gets his wish

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Quarterback Ron Jaworski got his wish when the Los Angeles Rams announced they were sending him to the Philadelphia Eagles in exchange for the rights to tight end Charles Young.

Under the new National Football League collective bargaining agreement, the teams involved have first refusal and compensation rights to free agents. Both Jaworski and Young had played out their options and are free agents.

Jaworski, a four-year NFL veteran from Youngstown State, was used sparingly by the Rams last season after suffering a broken shoulder in the first game of the season. The 6-foot-2, 185-pounder started two games for the Rams and appeared in five, completing 20 of 52 passes for 273 yards, with one touchdown and five interceptions.

Jaworski, 25, had said he was unhappy with Coach Chuck Knox's decision to start Pat Haden at quarterback late last season, and said he would not play another year for the Rams.

Young, a former University of Southern California All-American, caught 197 passes for 2,583 yards during his four years with the Eagles, and was the National Football Conference's Rookie of the Year in 1973. The 6-foot-4, 238-pounder from Fresno, Calif., led the conference with 63 catches in 1974, when he was chosen to play in the Pro Bowl game.

"I'm delighted we acquired the rights to Charles Young," said Knox. "We coached him in the Pro Bowl, and feel he can give us that added dimension of being able to play wide receiver as well as tight end."

'The Bird' unspoiled

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (AP) — "The Bird" is back—flighty and flaky as ever but totally unspoiled.

"My head must have left my body," said Mark "the Bird" Fidrych, trying to explain an uncharacteristic lapse into absent-mindedness in his 1977 pitching debut for the Detroit Tigers.

The 22-year-old rookie of the year, whose strong right arm and bizarre histrionics on the mound made him a national folk hero last season, pitched three scoreless innings, allowing three hits, as the Tigers beat the Boston Red Sox 5-4 Wednesday in baseball's spring opener.

He forgot and left his cap in the dugout at the start of the second inning. At the end of the inning he ran off the field after the second out, thinking the side was retired. He grabbed the wrong cap when he went to the mound in the third inning, and a bat boy rushed out to make the exchange.

'I heard somebody yell, 'Get your head screwed on, dummy,'" Fidrych said "I don't know what happened to me I guess I was too involved. I was thinking too much about the game. I was pumping too hard."

"The Bird" is always pumping—that's his trademark.

More than 4,000 fans had assembled at the Red Sox Chain O'Lakes Park when Fidrych and his teammates arrived by bus from nearby Lakeland an hour before game time. Traffic was jammed up for miles, delaying the arrival of American League President Lee MacPhail.

Signs dot stands

Hand-made signs dotted the stands: "Welcome to the Bird," "The Bird is back," "We love the Bird."

In the lockerroom, the 6-foot-2 stringbean with the shock of blond corkscrews for hair was greeted by a battery of newsmen from all around the training circuit.

"No pictures, no interviews before the game," the young pitcher said. "I've got to think."

Once outside, however, he could not turn his back on his adoring army, ranging from kids to grandpas.

"Hey, sign here, Bird."

"Please may I have your autograph?" came the pleas.

When they said, "Thank you," the Bird responded politely in a low tone: "You're welcome." "You're welcome." "You're welcome."

"I've never seen anything like it—this kid is the greatest draw in baseball," said Hal Middlesworth, Detroit director of public relations. "He started 29 games for us last year, drew 901,239—an average of 31,077—a regular magnet."

The free-spirited native of Worcester, Mass., has brought a breath of fresh air to a game bogged down with labor strife and law suits, putting on the best show in town last year while compiling a 19-9 record and leading the major league with an earned run average of 2.34.

Pants on fire

Seemingly all legs and arms, he pitches with a restless intensity, constantly tugging at his cap, jerking at his jersey, gardening the mound and talking to the ball. He races to and from the dugout like a man whose pants are on fire.

"I got to talk to the ball, I've always talked to the ball," he says. "It's my way of concentrating, it's my way of getting involved. If I don't get involved, they knock me all over the place."

His father is Polish, his mother Danish and he is the lone son among three sisters. He drove a pickup truck to the ball park until a Detroit motor company gave him a new sports car and the Tigers raised his salary from $16,500 at the start of last year to a three-year graduating scale of $50,000-$75,000-$100,000.

Somebody asked him if he feared, because of his wide publicity, he might start getting hammy and cocky.

"Me? Not a chance. I've been this way all my life. I can't change."

Ballard hits career high

TULSA, Okla. — Pomona's Greg Ballard scored a career-high 43 points here Wednesday night and Oregon needed every one.

The Ducks held on to a 90-89 victory over host Oral Roberts in a first round game of the National Invitational Tournament.

Even though Ballard, a senior from Pomona's Garey High, was the hero for Oregon, even he was overshadowed by Oral Roberts guard Anthony Roberts, who pumped in 65 points to break the NIT record of 53 set in 1945 by all-time great George Mikan of DePaul against Rhode Island.

Ballard was certainly impressed by Roberts' performance.

"Roberts is the best shooter I've ever seen. I don't see how he hit some of those shots," the Pomonan said.

Ballard's 43 points also set a Oregon single game record. The Ducks (19-9) will advance to New York next Tuesday to play the winner of tonight's game between St. Bonaventure and Rutgers.

Oregon coach Dick Harter felt the key to his team's victory was the Titans' brief loss of Roberts.

"We scored a couple of baskets when Roberts got hurt and was out of there (for 38 seconds) and that was the difference," Harter said.

"I wish we could both be going to New York (for the NIT quarterfinals next week). I sure wouldn't want to play them again," Harter added.

Roberts, who has been recovering from the flu, caught an elbow in the stomach under a basket in the second half. The Ducks took a 40-40 halftime tie and extended it to an 85-77 lead with 1:51 remaining before the Titans' closed in.

Harter's players couldn't stop raving about Roberts, but it was of little consolation to the 6-foot-6 senior forward who was the No. 2 scorer in the country with a 32.8 average before Wednesday night's game.

"Sixty five points don't mean a thing because we lost," Roberts said as he sat slumped in front of his locker. Even the complimentary remarks of Harter, Los Angeles Lakers scout Jerry Kraus and Lakers assistant coach Jack McCluskey didn't shake the gloom from his face.

The Ducks' Ernie Kent, a 6-5 senior who was one of the four Oregon players sharing the defensive assignment on Roberts, said he had never seen anyone that good, "much less played against anybody that good."

Not even Marques Johnson of UCLA, the Player of the Year?

"Marques takes you inside and dunks," said Kent, whose team held the UCLA star to 13 and 22 points in two victories over the Bruins this season. "Roberts just shoots them in from everywhere."

Kent kept repeating, "Unbelieveable!" to anyone who would listen, starting first with Roberts when there were eight seconds left and his team led by three points and was getting ready to shoot a free throw.

"Roberts hit some long tough shots when we were all over him. He's just unbelievable!" exclaimed Kent.

Padres beat Halos, Ryan

MEXICALI, Mexico (AP) — The San Diego Padres took advantage of Nolan Ryan's wildness to score five runs in the second inning Wednesday night and beat the California Angels, 6-3.

It was San Diego's second consecutive Cactus League victory over the Angels in a series which continues today at Yuma, Ariz.

Ryan walked four consecutive batters after a double by Tucker Ashford. A double by Jerry Turner scored two runs and a sacrifice fly by ex-Angel Bobby Valentine accounted for the final run off Ryan.

Ryan walked five, allowed three hits and five runs and struck out two in his two innings of work.

The angels scored two runs in the seventh inning off Rick Sawyer in the game played before a crowd estimated at 12,000. After Danny Briggs was safe on a fielders choice, Don Baylor doubled and Thad Bosley singled to score both runners.

Pasarell signs Strings' pact

LOS ANGELES — Charlie Pasarell, a star on the international tennis scene for more than a decade, has been signed by the Los Angeles Strings for the 1977 season.

Fight figure is murdered

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Police were following a kidnap-report clue today in the murder of Howie Steindler, manager of world featherweight boxing champion Danny Lopez.

A police spokesman said Steindler, 72, had been found dead in his car on the Ventura Freeway near Laurel Canyon Boulevard about 8 p.m. Wednesday.

The California Highway Patrol officer who found Steindler's body said it appeared that he had been shot in the right temple, but police investigators subsequently reported that he had been so badly beaten about the head that it was impossible to say if he had been shot.

Police said Steindler's body was found in his car, a gold Cadillac with a "Howie 5" license plate.

About an hour before he was found, West Valley police received a kidnap report apparently involving Steindler's car, investigators said.

One witness told police he saw three men pulling a woman into a gold-colored Cadillac with "Howie 5" plates, but another witness said a man was pulled into the car, officers said.

In addition to managing Lopez, Steindler was owner of the Main Street Gymnasium in Los Angeles.

Dick Allen joins A's

MESA, Ariz. (AP) — Dick Allen joined his fifth major league team, Charles O. Finley's troubled Oakland A's, today and Manager Jack McKeon said: "He looks great and he's ready to go."

McKeon confirmed reports that Allen would join the A's. A news conference, to be attended by Allen, was scheduled later in the day to formally announce the signing. No contract details were available.

Allen reported to the A's spring training camp here today and worked out with members of the team, who didn't go to nearby Tempe for the exhibition season opener against the Seattle Mariners.

McKeon said he expected Allen, 35, to be the A's first baseman this season. The one-time American League Most Valuable Player (1972) played in only 85 games for the Philadelphia Phillies last season, batting .268 with 15 home runs and 49 runs batted in, then became a free agent after the season.

A few years ago, Allen was the highest paid player in baseball, drawing a reported $250,000 a year from the Chicago White Sox.

The A's first basemen over the past three seasons were Gene Tenace, Joe Rudi and Don Baylor, who all became free agents last year and joined other major league baseball teams under lucrative, long-term agreements.

That left Finley with a rookie, Wayne Gross, as the leading candidate for the first base job this spring.

Allen was the National League's Rookie of the Year in 1964 with the Phillies, went to the St. Louis Cardinals in 1970, was traded to the Los Angeles Dodgers the next season and then spent three seasons with the White Sox before returning to the Phillies in 1975.

Elks sponsor annual banquet

The Pomona Elks Lodge 789 will host its 42nd Annual Pomona High Baseball Banquet Friday night.

The banquet is held each year in conjunction with the Pomona High-Elks Baseball Tournament.

This year's first-round pairings and tourney dedication will be announced Friday night at the banquet, with many high school coaches and major league scouts expected to be in attendance.

The tourney this year is slated to run April 2-6. It will again be sponsored by Pomona High, the Pomona Park and Recreation Department and the Pomona Elks.

All of last year's outstanding field of 32 prep teams will be returning this April for the varsity competition. Also, the tourney will once again feature a Junior Varsity division.

Paul Salata, billed as "the World's funniest sewer contractor", is the featured speaker for Friday's banquet.

Friday evening's program will include a brief outlook of each team by its coach, in addition to the announcement of pairings and the tourney dedication.

Reservations may be made by calling 629-1092 prior to 4:30 p.m. Friday. Tickets will also be available at the door.

Wrestling champ Athlete of Week

Bill Haselrig, the Ontario High senior who won a state wrestling title Saturday in Sacramento, has been named Prep Athlete of the Week by the Progress Bulletin.

Haselrig won the 157-pound title at the state high school championships held Friday and Saturday at American River College.

The Ontario wrestler won five matches, including three by pin, at the tournament to run his season record to 39-2.

"He's one of the best wrestlers I've ever had," said coach Doug Brooks, whose grapplers have won 10 straight league titles (nine Hacienda League crowns and one Arrowhead League championship).

"We knew Bill was capable of winning the title," said Brooks, "but I was certainly glad that he was able to put together the kind of effort necessary to win against that level of competition."

Haselrig recorded his 31st pin of the year in the championship match against Youseff Abed of Aptos High. The Ontario wrestler was leading 8-2 when he pinned Abed at 5:10.

On the way to the title match, Haselrig recorded two pins, a major (9-0) decison and a 12-5 decision at the Sacramento tournament.

Haselrig will be presented a plaque by Pomona Elks Lodge 789 at a dinner at the lodge April 13. The Elks lodge sponsors the Progress Bulletin Athlete of the Week Program.

Also nominated for this week's award was Damien soccer player Mike Hunter.

Hunter, the Spartans' senior forward, paced the locals to two wins in CIF playoff action last week.

Marcus Gordien eligible

Junior track and field star Marcus Gordien has been declared eligible to compete this season for Cal Poly, Bronco head coach Jim George reports. The ruling comes from the NCAA.

Gordien, a former national junior college record holder in the discus with a throw of 194 feet, eight inches, is a junior enrolled in the university as an agriculture business management major.

The Claremont resident was Mt. San Antonio College Athlete of the Year, last year and the South Coast Conference Field Athlete of the Year.

The 21-year-old, 6-4, 220 pound Gordien competes in the shot put and the discus. He has been competing this season along with the Broncos in their meets, on an unattached basis. Without his efforts counting in the Cal Poly team totals, the squad has been able to produce a 2-2 dual meet record.

Gordien has so far this season thrown for better than 55 feet in the shot put and more than 183 feet in the discus.

"Having Gordien available to compete for us this season helps us tremendously," George said. "He'll add to our scoring and make us very tough to beat."

The Claremont High graduate has more than a week to prepare for the Broncos' next dual meet, at Flagstaff against Northern Arizona University March 19.

The official eligibility ruling came from the NCAA's Enforcement Committee, which studied Gordien's transfer from San Jose State, where he was enrolled for two weeks last year, to MSAC.

Knicks turn to Reed

NEW YORK (AP) — Willis Reed says the New York Knicks have the potential to be a winning team. His job as coach will be to develop that potential—and he knows that won't be easy.

"Players have to be willing to work to attain a common goal, and that is winning," Reed said Wednesday at a Madison Square Garden news conference where it was announced that he had signed a three-year contract, starting with the 1977-78 season.

"Skillwise, the players today are better than when I was a player," said Reed, whose career was cut short in 1974 by chronic knee problems after serving as captain of the Knicks' National Basketball Association title teams in 1970 and 1973. "But I don't think they're as willing to sacrifice their individual skills, goals and glory for the good of the team.

"I'll talk about it with our players. I'll tell certain players what we think their basic attributes are and let them know what we want them to do. After that, it's a matter of getting them to do it."

Reed will work with the front office while Red Holzman coaches out the remainder of this season, the Knicks' third straight losing campaign despite the costly acquisition of players like Bob McAdoo and Spencer nha wood. He'll study the team's personnel as well as players on other pro teams or in the college ranks who might be available.

"I want to come in with a fresh slate," said Reed. "The foundation for a good team is here, and hopefully we'll add to it over the summer. Then we're going to go to training camp and work on the things you hve to do to win—the basics, like boxing out on rebounds and playing sound team defense."

Mounties visit Arizona

By MIKE BROSSART
PB Staff Writer

The valley's three community college track teams, which have been embroiled in important conference meets the past couple of weeks, will get something of a breather Friday.

John Norton's Mt. San Antonio College squad was to leave today for Arizona, where the Mounties will participate in a triangular meet with Arizona Mesa and Phoenix College Friday in Phoenix.

Chuck Hicks' Chaffey team will host San Diego City College Friday and Citrus will visit San Bernardino Valley, both at 3 p.m. Neither San Diego nor SBVC figure to provide much opposition for the stronger Panther and Owl trackmen.

MSAC lost a one-point decision to South Coast Conference foe Grossmont last Tuesday and came back for a 93-52 win over Cerritos.

"Stan Webster (from Garey High) was outstanding in the Grossmont meet," said Norton. "He scored 18 points. He was second in the 100, won the 200 with a lifetime best of 21.9, won the long jump at 23-7¼ and ran a good leg for the 440 relay, which we won in 42.4.

"Todd Kaberline won the high hurdles, was second in the high jump and third in the triple jump. I guess our most outstanding mark was Steve Tyler's 1:54.0 in the 800.

"Mark Booth borrowed a javelin from the Grossmont thrower, who was leading at 211, and Booth threw it 217-4 to win. Barry Boettcher (from Pomona High) lost to a couple of good milers and came back with a 15:21 for third in the 5,000.

"There were a lot of "ifs" in the meet — for example in the triple jump, the last event of the day, their jumper got a 47-6 on his last jump to beat our guy for third place. But we had to settle for a one-point loss."

The Mounties had little trouble at Cerritos. Kaberline went 6-6 in the high jump, 22-11 in the long jump, 46 feet in the triple jump and won the highs in 14.6. Boettcher won the 5,000 and ran the 800 in 1:56.

"Mesa and Phoenix will give us a good meet but it's non-conference so it will be somewhat relaxing," said Norton. "We hope that Fullerton beats Grossmont Friday and that we can beat Fullerton next week."

Chaffey dropped an 87-58 decision to Palomar last week. "We lost to a better team," said Hicks. "Palomar has a well-balanced squad. We have several holes that we can cover against most teams but not against a team like theirs.

"They swept the javelin and the pole vault on us and beat us 8-1 in the high jump so we lost a lot of points there. They also swept us in the half mile, which was something of a surprise.

"We went 1-2-3 in the sprints. Marcus Jennings ran 10.4 in the 100 and 22.2 in the 200 and Ron Vinson won the 400 handily in 49.4.

"Palomar will win the conference barring injury. They have done some good recruiting — including a 9.4 sprinter and a 13.8 hurdler from Nigeria, two jumpers and a hurdler from Sweden and a Canadian javelin thrower.

"We'll just have to regroup for our meet next week with Citrus. San Diego City has some fine individuals but is not well balanced."

Citrus beat San Diego City, 78-67, Friday in San Diego.

"We were lucky to get out with a win considering we scored one point in the sprints," said Owls' coach Vince O'Boyle. "Our middle and distance runners did really well, and our field events are starting to improve.

"Parry Kleinsasser won the 1,500 in 3:54.4 and controlled the race all the way. Glen Wright won the 800 in 1:56.8 and Tom McCann won the 5,000 in 15:01. Those are lifetime bests for all three of them.

"San Bernardino Valley is really down this year. We just hope we can come away with a relaxing meet and get ready for Chaffey next week."

Broncos vanquish UCLA on Belk's eight-hitter

By BRENT SHYER
PB Correspondent

At this point, in somewhat of a frustrating season, Cal Poly Pomona's baseball team can be happy that it has a pitcher named Chuck Belk.

On Wednesday afternoon at the Broncos' diamond, Belk hurled his way past the UCLA Bruins in his fifth complete game of the season, as the Broncos came back to win, 3-1.

Belk now has the honor of having every Cal Poly victory under his belt, as he is now 3-3 this year, while the Broncos are 3-11 overall.

The 6-foot-2, righthanded senior from Hacienda Heights allowed the Bruins their lone run in the third inning. Gary Rasmussen singled and, with one out, was running on a pitch to Jim Thomas.

Against UCLA's top hurler, Tim O'Neill, the Broncos were quite quiet through the first six frames. In fact, O'Neill (a low-ball pitcher) gave up just two singles in the fourth inning (one by Dave Najera and one by Ray Pekarcik).

But in the seventh, the Broncos' bats began to get on the ball, as they put together four hits and a suicide squeeze play for three tallies.

Jay Johnson's fielder's choice to shortstop got Najera home to tie the score. Kevin McLean hit a line drive to left field for a base hit and, as Dave Baker's throw came to third base, McLean took second.

The Bruins' coach, Gary Adams, had seen enough of pitcher O'Neill for the day, and he brought in lefthander Dave Rucker. Rucker was promptly greeted by pinch hitter Bob Minor's bullet back through the box. At that point, Cal Poly led 2-1.

Then a suicide squeeze play worked well, as Joe Passerino got the ball down, while teammate McLean came in to score.

In all, Cal Poly had seven hits, while the Bruins (11-10) had eight safties. Rasmussen led the Westwooders with a pair of singles.

"In the last five ball games, we've been playing good ball," said Cal Poly's head coach John Scolinos. "Actually, we've been playing good enough to win them all.

"Today (Wednesday), we faced UCLA's ace pitcher. He was giving us a lot of trouble for a while there. He's a good breaking-ball, off-speed pitcher. My guys did a great job adjusting to him in the seventh.

"We are starting to get good pitching now, especially from Belk and (Rick) Schwenn."

When freshmen pitchers Bob Luitwieler and John Hoban become eligible to play, coach Scolinos hopes that they will also firm up the pitching staff. Prior to the UCLA game, the Broncos' team earned run average was 7.05.

Relays meeting slated

The 19th Annual Mt. San Antonio Relays Games Committee will hold a general meeting at 11:30 a.m., Thursday, March 17, at the Pomona National Country Club in Walnut. The 1977 Games Chairman, Moe Bell has extended an open invitation to "anyone who is interested in promoting amateur track and field" to join the Games Committee at this month's business meeting.

"With the MSAC Relays scheduled for April 22, 23, 24, the last month of preparation for our nation's largest track and field relays gets a little hectic," stated chairman Bell. He emphasized that the "Relays" is a non-profit Olympic development project that is taken on by volunteers throughout the San Gabriel and Pomona Valley area and for that reason has an open door to anyone wishing to get involved.

Information of the Games Committee and for special advance ticket pruchase is available by telephoning the MSAC Relays Office at (714) 598-2811, ext. 288.

AL VECCHIO, AREA "G" DIRECTOR FOR AYSO informs us that May 30, Memorial Day, has been selected by the L. A. Aztecs as AYSO Area "G" Day at the L. A. Coliseum. There will be three preliminary games by teams from Area "G" to the L. A. Aztecs vs. St. Louis Stars game. Special discount coupons are being currently distributed by Vecchio to the various Regions in this Area; In essence, two adults and two children will be admitted for $5 plus a $1 discount on a Shakeys pizza. Area "G" covers the cities between Hacienda Heights and Alta Loma.

THERE'S BEEN SO MANY UPSETS in the opening rounds of South American World Cup action that it's difficult to focus an eye on the nine countries vying for the three places in the final 16.

Suffice it to say, there will be a clear decision made by the end of March when the smoke clears. The early upsets were only the first games in the home-and-away series each country plays.

Playing at home and at lesser elevations will level the situation. Argentina, host to the '78 WC, and defending champs West Germany, are given automatic places without competition. Strangely, sometimes the competition is what the coach wants ... as evidenced by noting that only Italy and Brazil have ever repeated as champs in back-to-back titles.

THE CHALLENGE OF MAINTAINING EXCELLENCE is a constant threat to a championship club. Take Cruzeiro, champs of all South America on the club scene, who floundered in the snow of Munich and the mud of Belo Horizonte when they succumbed to Bayern Munich in the clash for the World Club title recently.

Success dictated Cruzeiro go immediately on tour and recoup the dollars (cruzeiros in Brazil) so they embarked on a physically challenging trek winning 8 straight playing in tourneys in Caracas and Mexico City and Los Angeles and San Francisco.

Cruzeiro's L. A. appearance showed them to be a tired team after 13 games. Twice they were tied by Universidad of Mexico City and finally the Mexicans beat them in San Francisco. The South Americans will muster their talents and courage for another L. A. game at the Coliseum at 8 p.m. Friday. They are worth a look. They play beautiful soccer. Opponent will be Guadalajara of Mexico.

The jolting announcement that Osvaldo Brandao had resigned as Brazil's national coach was quickly followed by the appointment of Flamengo's coach, Claudio Countinho. Some of our area coaches got to hear Coutinho's expressive and crystal-clear lectures at the coaches meeting in San Francisco last month. Brandao resigned after Brazil's shock tie with Venezuela. Coutinho immediately dropped 6 players and added 6 replacements ...

IN CASE YOU AREN'T ALTERED. . . we have fine TV soccer now ... a Mexican game at 9:45 a.m. Sunday; the English 1st Division game 6 p.m. Sunday; and the German game comes at us Thursday at 10 p.m. on a show called "Greetings from Germany" which will show Beckenbauer and Muller of Bayern vs their World Cup teammate Overath who plays league with Koln (or Cologne in plainer talk). Here are three distinctly different styles of soccer. Spread the word ... and get your kids to watch it. Top level stuff.

MARIO MACHADO PROMISES US the Aston Villa/Leeds League Cup Final March 19 at 4:45 p.m. over (28). The Mexican games are on (34); English on (28); and the German on (22).

THERE WON'T BE AN SAL TEAM IN THE FINAL! That chance went by the wayside Tuesday when Santa Barbara's championship juggernaut dropped Damien by 2-1 in one of the cleanest games seen around here in some time. Referees John Greenwood and Herman Gompers were alert to the boyd-bumping and arm-fouling from the opening whistle and the game never got a chance to deteriorate.

Earlier in a pre-season tournament, Damien tied Santa Barbara but the dominant Santa Barbarans haven't been two-time CIF champs without reason.

Even without their standout Rudy Ibarra they still play a strong game and kept Damien from scoring from the field. Damien's goal came on a penalty shot by Pete Fox whose power-drive roared into the net past the dividing goalie.

Santa Barbara, not as strong up front as usual, had an especially agile back line ... small but talented ... and they were good readers of the game. Credit the defense for this one.

THE BIG NIGHT IS AT MSAC Friday when the CIF final games bring the 4A and 3A finalists to the moment of truth.

Leopards split with Chapman

ORANGE — La Verne College divided a doubleheader with host Chapman College here Wednesday afternoon, falling in the first game 4-3 but rebounding for a 6-2 win in the nightcap.

Leo hurler Paul McGuire registered his second win of the season in that second game, as he stopped the potent Chapman attack on seven hits.

La Verne is now 6-4 on the season.

Chapman took an early 1-0 lead in the second game Wednesday, but a run-scoring double by Ralph Valadez tied the game in the second. The Leos then went on top to stay in the third on RBI two-baggers by Wayne Redfearn and Steve Polan.

Solo homers by Redfearn and Tim Burzette in the fifth and sixth innings, respectively, padded the L.V. margin. Jim Christopher stoked a solo round-tripper for Chapman's last run in the fifth.

In game number one, Panther hurler Steve Hanson dominated the Leo batters through five innings, fanning 11 L.V. men.

The Leos finally started to reach Hanson in the sixth, and in the seventh made it a one-run game on Burzette's RBI double, a ground out which scored Burzette, and Bob Waldusky's pinch-hit homer.

However, Hanson held off the Leopards the rest of the way. Les Fields' homer in the sixth for Chapman off L.V.'s Doug Thompson proved to be the game-winner.

Redfearn finished the twinbill with four hits in eight trips, while Burzette was three-for-seven.

Next action for La Verne will be Saturday when the Leos host Pomona-Pitzer in a SCIAC doubleheader.

Vikings triumph

DUARTE — Garey High won its third baseball game of the year here Wednesday and may have found a number two pitcher in the process.

Sophomore Aurelio Coronado stopped Duarte on four hits and the Vikings registered an easy 12-2 win. Garey is now 3-2 on the season.

Coronado fanned 11 Duarte batters in his first start of the season. Cregg Handy had been doing most of the hurling for the Vikings, but Handy had pitched on Tuesday so Garey coach Monse Estrada came back with Coronado and the sophomore looked sharp.

On offense, Ruben Rodriguez led the Viking attack with three singles and a double. Larry Reyes chipped in with two doubles and a single, while Chris Davis slammed two two-baggers as well for the locals.

Citrus bows out

MISSION VIEJO — Citrus College's basketball season came to an end here Wednesday night, as host Saddleback College beat the Owls 89-59 in in the Mission Conference playoffs.

Saddleback, now 25-8 on the year, will advance to the state JC cage tourney, to start in Fresno on March 17. The Gauchos will play the winner of the Western State Conference in their opener at Fresno's Selland Arena.

The Owls, who finished the season with a 18-14 ledger, trailed the hosts by 10 (at 35-25) at the half and closed that margin to as few as six twice early in the second half.

However, the Gauchos then used their outside shooting to pull away.

La Verne LL sets tryouts, signups

Tryouts and signups for all levels of La Verne Little League's baseball program will be held this Saturday and next at Pelota Park in La Verne.

Pelota Park is located on Wheeler Avenue.

Tryouts for La Verne's Majors and Majors farm teams will take place this Saturday starting at 9:30 a.m. at Pelota. These teams are for youths ages 10-12.

Tryouts for the Seniors and Senior Minors will be held Saturday, March 19 at Pelota, along with another tryout session for the Majors. The Majors tryouts will start at 9:30 a.m. on the 19th, while the Seniors will tryout beginning at 2 p.m.

Boys ages 10-16 can also signup for the Majors or Seniors at these times. To signup a youth must bring a certified birth certificate.

Singups will also be held Saturday beginning at 9:30 a.m. for the La Verne LL girls softball program, for girls ages 10-15, and for the La Verne Big League team, for boys ages 16-18. Once again, all youths planning to signup on Saturday are reminded that they must bring a certified birth certificate.

La Verne LL also needs managers and coaches. For further information, call Gene Benner at 593-6425 or Ralph Simonson at 593-4285.

Hacienda openers near

All eight Hacienda League baseball teams will swing into league action Friday afternoon at 3:15 p.m., in what promises to be an exciting campaign.

The Hacienda has been traditionally one of the strongest 2A baseball leagues in the CIF Southern Section, and this year doesn't figure to be an exception.

If anything, the loop appears stronger top to bottom than in recent years, with no one team appearing as a clear-cut pick to win the league title.

It would appear that the league will be crowning a new champ this spring. Defending titlist Bonita does not seem to have the depth or pitching to annex the crown once again, although the Bearcats do have tradition on their side.

Bonita, which finished 11-3 in league and 15-9 on the year last season, has dominated the league in recent years with the likes of Harold Drake, Bill Bumstead and Scott Johnson.

Unfortunately, all those star caliber players are gone, and coach Dick Salomon of the 'Cats could be in for a rare losing season.

The 'Cats carry a 0-6 non-league mark into their Friday opener at home vs. Sierra Vista. That record is a bit deceptive, since Bonita has played only top-notch competition.

Even so, there is not much to the 'Cat pitching staff beyond returning righthander Ralph Ortega, and even he has been roughed up a bit in non-league activity.

Salomon does feel he has a potential star hurler in junior Paul Forstner, a transfer from Florida. Based on non-league outings, however, Forstner may not be the much-needed "arm" for the 'Cats.

Besides Ortega, first baseman Ron Pickinpaugh is back in the 'Cat fold, as is shortstop Bob Vidaure. But inexperience dots the remainder of the Bonita roster.

"Our team lacks varsity experience," Salomon admits. "We hope to improve with each game and be in the top three in our league by season's end."

If Bonita is to repeat the two squads the Bearcats will have to beat appear to be Alta Loma and Walnut.

Alta Loma, under coach Gary Cronan, has what could be the best pitching staff in the league in righthanders Steve Cuccia, Charlie Balber and Bobby Kilmer. Cuccia was an all-league selection last year as a junior, but right now Cronan regards Kilmer as his number one pitcher.

Also back are hard-hitting second baseman Mike Munoz and third sacker Dave Silva, along with shortstop Moise Hill and centerfielder Mike Sloan.

In addition, Cronan feels he has a potential diamond star in Mark Anderson, fresh from the Braves' basketball squad. The Braves finished non-league activity at 3-3-1.

Walnut, runnerup to Bonita last year, has two impressive hurlers of its own in seniors Creg Fenwick and Bob Cordova.

Fenwick is a hard-throwing righthander who has looked sharp in a couple outings so far. Cordova was the Mustangs' number-two hurler last year and won eight games. He also is a standout with the bat, and will play the outfield when not pitching.

Other returning starters for coach Terry Murphy's team are first baseman Ed Kimura (who batted .342 last year), shortstop Rich Hunt and outfielder Dave Olivas.

Walnut will carry a 2-4 non-league ledger into its opener Friday at home vs. Alta Loma.

While none of the other five H.L. entries appears to be quite as strong as Walnut or Alta Loma, or even Bonita, every Hacienda squad would appear to have to the ability to upset the frontrunners.

San Dimas, 1-5 so far this spring, has all-league outfielder Steve Campbell returning. Campbell will also help out the Saints' rather meager pitching staff.

Randy Risner and Alan Quay, both juniors, are regarded by veteran Saint skipper Doyle Lyman as probable starting pitchers along with Campbell.

Ontario, under the guidance of Bob Beck, posted a 3-3 non-league mark. The Jaguars do have one of the top pitching prospects in the loop in senior Mike Breslin, who also plays the outfield.

Jesse Koopman and Ron Penigar, righthanders like Breslin, will also help the Ontario mound situation.

Top returnees for the Jags are first baseman Sean Severn, shortstop Rick Franco, third baseman Roy Gomez and catcher Don Moser.

Ontario will open at home vs. Royal Oak on Friday.

U.S. cyclists battle world

IRWINDALE — Nearby Irwindale Raceway will be the scene of the U.S. Vs. the World International Champions Challenger Series when 14 Speedway motorcycle outstanding riders clash Saturday at 8 p.m.

The series kicks off Friday at Costa Mesa Fairgrounds, also at 8 p.m., and the finale is scheduled on March 19 at the Ventura County Fairgrounds, also at 8 p.m.

Four present or past world's Speedway champions head the European invaders. They include England's Peter Collins, the 1976 title holder; Sweden's Anders Michanek, 1975 champion; and New Zealand's Ivan Mauger and Barry Briggs, both former four-time champions. Other invader are Jiri Stancl, Czechoslovakia; Zenon Plech, Poland; and Jimmy McMillan, Scotland.

They will face the Americans, led by Mike Bast, current U.S. champion, and such Yankee "Young Lions" as Scott Autrey, Mike Curoso, Rick MacMurray, Bruce Penhall, Bobby Schwartz and Lightening Larry Shaw.

Autrey finished ninth in last year's world final — highest finish for an American in 40 years. Curoso is the AMA Speedway champion MacMurray is Northern California's No. 1 rider.

Ticket prices at Irwindale and Costa Mesa are $6 for adults and $3 for youths, with children 12 and under free on a first-come-first serve basis.

Chaffey rates as favorite

Chaffey Aquatics has been established as the overwhelming favorite to capture the Southern California Aquatic Association's winter season championship this weekend at the Belmont Plaza Olympic Pool in Long Beach.

According to Chaffey head coach John Ries, there are 15 teams in the SCAA Conference and the teams are from various cities of Southern California.

"If recent performances are used as measuring sticks," says Ries, "our swimmers should be able to win the SCAA championship this weekend with a comfortable margin."

In an Eastern Section, Southern Pacific Association ABC swim meet at Hacienda Heights last week, many Chaffey swimmers had posted personal and seasonal best times.

Boys' 15-18 age group A division: Pat Grabowski, 3rd in the 100 yards freestyle in 54.1 seconds.

Boys' 13-14 age group A division: Todd Majors, 1st in 200 free in 2:03.6, 2nd in 100 butterfly in 1:06.2, 3rd in 100 back in 1:07.5 and 5th in 200 I.M. in 2:25.2; Rod Carver, 2nd in 100 breast in 1:14.0 and 4th in 100 fly in 1:07.5; and Steve Mai, 6th in 100 breast in 1:16.1.

Girls' 11-12 C: Julie Grabowski, 3rd in 100 free and 3rd in 50 back.

Billy Packer busy man

NEW YORK (AP) — Billy Packer, NBC's crack college basketball commentator, isn't in it for the money. Or the glory. Or the exposure.

He's in it for the basketball. And he's gotten all he can handle this season.

Last week, for example, Packer covered three games in the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament Thursday, the ACC semifinals Friday, flew to South Bend, Ind. for Saturday's Notre Dame-San Francisco game, back to Greensboro, N.C. for the ACC title game Saturday night, then on to Ann Arbor, Mich. for Sunday's Michigan - Marquette game.

Eight games in four days. "And each one was thrill, I can tell you," says Packer. "I wasn't tired at all. I wouldn't want to do eight dogs but there's no way I'm going to get lethargic with games in Greensboro or South Bend or Ann Arbor.

"Those were great games and I got to see about one-fifth of the field for the NCAA tournament in one weekend. You can't beat that."

Packer, president of Butler Enterprises, a hotel and motel supply company in Winston-Salem, N.C., follows basketball for the fun of it.

"I have no ambitions to be a sportscaster," he says. "This is my hobby. I keep up with basketball 365 days a year and I love it. I know the game a little bit and I know the teams so I don't need much preparation. I get involved when the game starts.

"I don't know how the hell this TV thing happened but it's a lot of fun. And I've been lucky. Nobody has ever tried to tell me 'Hey, you have to say more about this or less about that.' I still look at it as if I was home with a bunch of friends watching the game and talking about it.

"When I have to consciously plan what I'm going to say it would become too much work to be a hobby."

NBC will televise NCAA firstround doubleheaders both Saturday and Sunday with Packer and Dick Enberg working the UCLA-Louisville game Saturday and the Syracuse-Tennessee game Sunday. There are 32 teams in the field and none of them is considered a big favorite. The field is wide open but Packer has some thoughts on who eventually will win the four regionals and advance to the finals at Atlanta.

For the record, here's how he sizes up the four regionals:

—EAST: "Kentucky should sweep here if it gets by Princeton in the first game. Don't lsugh when I talk about Princeton. Kentucky is most effective in a zone and if you play Princeton a zone and they get the lead, they'll hold the ball all day until you come out after them. If Kentucky doesn't get ahead early, Princeton could beat them. North Carolina would have had a chance if they were healthy but I can't see them winning with Walter Davis and Tommy LaGarde hurt. No dark horse here."

—WEST: "The winner of the UCLA-Louisville game should win the West. Louisville has incredible talent and leaping ability and Denny Crum is a good coach. If UCLA gets by Louisville, they're going to figure they belong in the final four. No dark horse here either."

—MIDWEST: "I like Marquette. They have settled down now, they had their slump at the right time and they've been playing well on the road. Providence is the dark horse."

—MIDEAST: "I see Tennessee and Michigan in the finals with Tennessee winning. I have to take Tennessee unless Michigan guard Rickey Green's leg is 100 per cent. You can't afford to lose an All-American of his caliber and still win. Syracuse is the dark horse."

Wenzel wins All-CBL spot

Chaffey High's Randy Wenzel was selected for all-Citrus Belt League hoop honors recently. Teammates Randy Johnston and Jim Reinhardt were selected for Honorable mention.

Wenzel, who is the smallest center in the CBL at 6 feet 3 inches, scored 198 points in 15 league contests. He averaged 13.2 points a game in league action in his senior year.

Johnston was Chaffey's leading scoring until he came down with a strep throat midway through the hoop season.

Aztecs invite soccer fans

LOS ANGELES — The Aztecs will hold an open house at the L.A. Memorial Coliseum on Sunday with the activities beginning at 11:45 a.m. Admission and parking are free.

Aztecs' fans will have the opportunity to personally select their season seats for the 13-game home schedule, and will be taken on tours of the Coliseum's behind - the - scenes facilities, such as the press box and locker rooms. The 1977 edition of the Aztecs will be on hand to demonstrate the NASL's "shootout" tiebreaker procedure and sign autographs for the youngsters.

Three youth soccer games, beginning at 11:45 a.m., will feature the following teams: Palos Verdes Buffaloes, Pasadena Grenadiers,s Long Beach Rowdies, Riverside Cheetahs, Irvine Rangers and Winnetka Park Eagles.

MSAC golfers win tourney

Mt. San Antonio College's golf squad recently claimed first in the Cerritos Tournament held at the Rio Hondo Country Club in Downey.

Robert Turner

Robert Turner, Calvary Baptist High's sophomore basketball sensation, has been named the Most Valuable Player of the Christian League.

Max Price, first-year head coach at American Christian Academy, was selected the league's Coach of the Year.

ACA's Terry Balliet also received all-league honors and Calvary Baptist's Chris Pruitt received honorable mention.

Bronco women fifth in badminton finals

Cal Poly's women's badminton squad can play the remainder of its season with pride and confidence after having taken fifth place in the Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women National Badminton Championship Tournament this past weekend in Tempe, Ariz.

The Broncos, who don't play another game until the conference battle with Long Beach State March 31, finished team-wise in a tie with Eastern Illinois University for fifth place with 19 points.

UCLA won the championship with 52 points, with Arizona State (45), Western Illinois (22), and University of Wisconsin-Lacrosse (21) the only teams topping Cal Poly in the final standings of the 16 teams conpeting. Other California schools competing were Long Beach State, San Diego State and Fresno State.

Cal Poly, which competed in the tourney for only the second time, was represented by Ann Quay, Jo Agerbeek, Vicki Kastelic and Myra Nakata. Kastelic was a runnerup in the consolation division of singles competition, while Quay and Agerbeek teamed to qualify for the quarter-finals in doubles competition. Nakata and Kastelic made it to the semi finals in the consolation bracket of the doubles competition.

Mays earns SCC honors

Mt. San Antonio College forward Earner Mays was picked to the All-South Coast Conference's basketball squad Wednesday by vote of the loop's coaches.

EDITOR'S NOTE: In a rare gesture, President Idi Amin allowed several American correspondents to visit Uganda briefly at the ehight of the international furor over reports of wholesale massacres in the country. Following is a closeup look at Amin at work and leisure, at those around him and at life in Uganda.

An AP NEWS SPECIAL
By BRIAN JEFFRIES
Associated Press Writer

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — Ugandan President Idi Amin, dressed in a blue track-suit top, white shorts, gray socks and canvas sneakers, strode across the well-manicured lawns of the presidential lodge, smiling and waving benevolently to waiting guests.

To the hundreds of officials, friends and guests gathered for Amin's weekly basketball game, he was a jovial and generous host. But those who cross his path might be found the next day floating face-down in the Nile River.

The guests on this Sunday afternoon included cabinet ministers, army officers, policemen, civil servants, a Roman Catholic bishop, and a group of Western correspondents invited for a rare visit to Uganda last week.

The bulky, muscular Ugandan president shook hands with some of his visitors, announced the division of the four participating teams and trotted onto the court. He is a giant of a man, whose physical presence is intimidating. At 6 foot 4, he reached near the basket and had no problem laying in the ball.

As the matches proceeded he was the only person on his team to score points. But when he lost the ball or missed a pass he was subjected to goodnatured laughter by his opponents. They in turn were subjected to humorous jibes from Amin.

The assembled guests watched the games, chatted, ate roast goat and rice and drank large quantities of beer, liquor and mineral water served by white-coated waiters. It was all very civilized and almost genteel. Amin was at his charming and amicable best — the former army private who has turned dictator without losing the common touch.

Bob Astles, the British-born aide to the president who was personally responsible for arranging the American journalists' visit, said: "If he likes you, you have a friend for life. If not forget it."

But he agreed the president is a dangerous man to cross. It is a lesson his opponents, real or imagined, have learned to their cost.

Nobody knows how many persons have been killed in Uganda since Amin came to power six years ago. The most popularly quoted figures are between 50,000 and 300,000, used by Amnesty International, a London-based human rights organization.

The wide gap between the two figures only underlines the fact that accurate information is hard to come by, although it is widely accepted that thousands have been murdered.

The midnight knock on the door, opponents bundled into trunks of cars by members of the feared State Research Bureau, bodies found floating in the Nile River or Lake Victoria and fatal beatings in jail are all too consistently reported to be ignored.

But there was little opportunity for visiting American correspondents to gather independent information in their visit here last week.

The afternoon with Amin, including a brief interview, was the prize at the end of a closely supervised visit.

The newsmen were lodged at Cape Town Villas Hotel, five miles from downtown Kampala, and warned that if they wandered around without an escort their security could not be guaranteed. The warning was somewhat superfluous as independent transport from the hotel is not available.

The escort consisted of drivers and assistants handpicked by Astles, as well as a uniformed police officer. In an aside Astles disclosed that the drivers were trained in Moscow and have been taught to shoot from the open doors of fastmoving vehicles.

Astles, 53, is a former Royal Air Force pilot, a Ugandan citizen and apparently a man of immense power in Uganda. He is shortish, balding, ruddyfaced and wears crumpled Savile Row suits. He has instant access to Amin, whom he refers to as "his excellency."

It was not clear exactly what his official functions are other than to act as a Mr. Fix-it for Amin. He has been in charge of the anticorruption squad, overrides the Ministry of Information to get Western journalists into the country and admits he has many enemies.

"He leads a charmed life," said a friend.

A striking aspect of the trip was the apparent absence of troops around Kampala and the lack of security at Entebbe Airport, 21 miles away, the scene of the airborne Israeli commando raid last July to rescue 100 air hijack hostages.

In several drives through Kampala, only occasional jeeploads of troops were seen. During the day the streets were bustling with activity but at night the town was virtually deserted.

Price of tea about to soar

LONDON (AP) — Coffee drinkers who switched to tea to save money will soon find the cost of the substitute rising.

London dealers said that the price of tea is about to soar all over the world, and a cup in Britain may cost twice as much this summer as it does now.

They said a key reason for booming prices is that many consumers are turning from increasingly expensive coffee to cheaper beverages, particularly tea.

London auction prices rose from $1.20 a kilogram (2.2 pounds) on Feb. 28, 1976, to $2.57 a kilo on the same day this year. At Monday's auction the price hit $2.90 a kilo.

Brooke Bond, one of Britain's largest tea wholesalers, said American and Canadian buying at recent auctions in the Near East and London caused a shortage in a market that until a few months ago was burdened with a glut.

"I can't remember any time before when there actually hasn't been enough tea at an auction to meet the trade's demands, but that is what is happening now," another dealer said.

The impact on the tea drinker has not been immediate because it takes several months for price increases to work their way through the distribution pipeline.

A "brew-up" is still inexpensive for Britons, who drink more tea per capita than any other nation. An average cup of tea made at home from loose tea leaves costs about seven-tenths of a cent, milk and sugar included. It costs 4.27 cents to make a cup of instant coffee at home.

L.A. County jobless rate in surprise dip

LOS ANGELES (AP)— New hiring brought an unusual February decline in the Los Angeles County unemployment rate, the state Employment Development Department reported Wednesday.

The jobless rate last month was 7.3 per cent, down from the 7.8 per cent of January and from the 9.4 per cent of February 1976, EDD spokesman Gera Curry said.

"This is very odd for a February," Mrs. Curry said. "This is normally a slow time of the year, a dead time before the spring surge.

"It's really surprised us. We think it's marvelous, but we don't know why," she said.

Employment rose to a record high for a February of 3,038,200. The figure was also the third highest month on record, outranked only by November and December of last year, when 3,042,000 and 3,064,600 persons, respectively, had jobs.

The total number of persons out of work in Los Angeles County fell by 8,700 between January and February. It was the first time since 1972 that the jobless total declined between the two months, the department said.

Total unemployment last month was 257,100. The civilian work force totaled 3,295,300.

The service sector, which includes business, health and education services, hired the most new people last month, 3,700. The wholesale trade sector added 1,700 new jobs. Government added 900 jobs, construction industries 1,300 and manufacturing 800.

However, jobs were lost in two areas: retail trade, a normal trend because of post-Christmas layoffs, down 5,200; and transportation and public utilities, down 3,600.

Across the state, unemployment dropped from 8.5 per cent in January to 7.8 per cent last month, the department said. It was the fourth consecutive monthly unemployment rate drop.

Fords to publish memoirs

PALM SPRINGS (AP) — Former President Gerald Ford and his wife Betty said today they will publish their memoirs, with Ford giving both a personal and historical account beginning with his selection as vice president.

Ford's book, due in the summer of 1979, will concentrate largely on the events of his presidency and will contain hitherto unpublished material about many of the personalities and the events of this period of history, according to a statement released by Ford's office and the publishers.

Both books will be copublished by Harper and Row and the Reader's Digest, the statement said.

Mrs. Ford's book, to be published in the fall of 1978, will be the candid autobiography of the outspoken former First Lady, it was announced.

It will be the personal story of Betty Ford's efforts to balance sometimes conflicting obligations in fulfilling the several roles of a complicated life, as an individual, a wife, a mother and as a private person and a public figure.

At an informal gathering at the Ford home in Palm Springs, the Fords said, "Harper and Row has long been noted for its memoirs of public figures and its fine books on subjects of broad public concern. And the Reader's Digest, the world's most widely read periodical, has a record of distinguished publishing in public affairs and is well known for its ability to speak to the human and personal interests of its millions of readers all over the world. We are very pleased that two such fine organizations have joined forces to publish these two books.

"We expect that our association with Harpers and the Digest will be a very pleasant one for us all."

On behalf of te pulishers, Edward Thompson, editor-in-chief of the Reader's Digest and Winthrop Knowlton, president of Harper and Row, said, "Both President Ford and Mrs. Ford have shown again and again that they understand intimately the concerns and aspirations that are basic to the fabric of life in the United States. Having brought credit back to the White House, and having helped to heal a bruised and skeptical nation, they will now share with all of us their candid reflections on their lives to this point, the highs and the lows, the wins and losses. We are convinced that readers of every persuasion will find themselves enriched by what the Fords have to say and that their books will meet with substantial acceptance throughout the world."

Pines spends $115,814 in his campaign

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Reports in the city clerk's office show that City Atty. Burt Pines has spent $115,814 in his bid for reelection, more than 150 times the amount spent by any of his opponents.

The contender for the four-year office closest to Pines in spending is attorney Earl H. Fagin, who had spent $714, followed by Richard B. Ardwil, who had spent only $657.

In the race for the city controller's office — being vacated this year by retiring incumbent City Controller Charles Navarro — community college trustee Ira Rainer leads the spending race with $17,341, records show. Assemblyman Robert C. Cline has spent $13,921 in his bid for the controller's post and Los Angeles City Councilman Louis R. Nowell has spent $13,365.

Shot in back

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Police say two bandits shot and killed the manager of an East Los Angeles bar during a robbery. Emilio Sanchez, 54, was shot when he turned his back on the robbers after telling them to "help yourselves" to the cash register, police said.

Odds on weather to be computed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers and energy planners will have gamblers' odds available from a new long-range weather forecasting system to be established by Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland.

Bergland says his plans have the approval of President Carter.

Under the plan, U.S. and foreign weather records, some dating back more than 100 years, will be placed in a computer system. The computer, Bergland says, may give 6 to 5 odds, for example, on the probability of future drought or the kind of winter now gripping the eastern half of the United States.

Although it will be designed primarily to help farmers and the agriculture Department make crop plans, Bergland said in an interview that the forecast also will be valuable for making long-range energy policy and other decisions.

"We'll be a kind of Jimmy the Greek in agricultural forecasting," Bergland said. "I don't know that we can do what I'm trying to do here, but I say we're going to try. I've talked with the President generally about the need for better weather information and he endorses this enthusiastically. He said, 'by all means do what you can,' and I'm just starting to set it up."

Bergland said the Agriculture Department will not get into basic weather research or duplicate services of other agencies. But the system will review and analyze available information, which, he said, often is fragmented and uncoordinated.

He said the thrust will be to long-range forecasts and will include data on climatology. Much has been said, for example, about the possibility of important food regions becoming drier or colder.

"This is a brand new thing and it's going to be criticized by some of the agencies in this town as being just hereay," Bergland said. "Thre are people here who think that the only game in town is to do that which we have done well in forecasting 30 days ahead and that weather is essentially uncontrollable, unpredictable, volatile and that everything is just pure, sheer happenstance.

"Maybe so, I don't know. But I want to look at it, and I'm prepared to spend considerable time looking into that," he said.

Bergland said "it doesn't make any sense" to have conflicting world grain forecasts.

About a year ago, for example, there were reports that the CIA had found the Soviet Union on the brink of another crop disaster, which could have forced another drain on U.S. and world grain supplies. But Russia had a record grain crop and world stockpiles have risen.

"I don't know where and how the CIA gathers its information," Bergland said. "But I surely believe that the conflicts can be reconciled, and we're going to do just that."

A first step will be to form an Agriculture Department group to tap "every available source of information in this country on weather trends and data" and develop a computer model that can be used to construct "mathematical probabilities" for future weather.

Bergland said the system will include data from "around the world as far back as we can get precise information" on foreign crop areas such as the Soviet Union, Europe, Asia and other regions.

"Then we will develop percentages or odds that will give us the probability of rains continuing to fall in India or not falling in Russia, or an early freeze in Minnesota or drought in California due to the snowpack," Bergland said.

RESULT OF BLAST — The crater at lower left is all that remains of a steel and wood building at National Lime and Stone Co., in Carey, Ohio, after 25 tons of dynamite exploded. The crater is 100 feet long, 80 feet wide and 50 feet deep. Nobody was injured in the blast which Wyandotte County sheriff Mark Kauble said was intentional.

One busing candidate victorious

PASADENA (AP) — A bitter campaign centering on mandatory cross-town busing has ended with two Pasadena school board incumbents forced into a runoff election and a third defeated.

Final vote counts showed that Lyman Newton had been defeated, 14,507 to 15,761, by challenger Marjorie Wyatt, supported by some leaders of Pasadena's black community and by those who support mandatory busing.

An April 19 runoff election will pit board president Henry Myers Jr. against Ralph Hallman and board member Richard Vetterli against Wallace Frasher.

Evel Knievel's doctor offers aid to Crosby

The offer came Monday from the orthopedic surgeon who regularly patches up the motorcycle daredevil when stunts don't work out quite as planned.

But Crosby's doctor declined the assistance, pointing out that the 72-year-old singer had not broken any bones in his fall from the stage after a benfit performance last week.

Crosby remains hospitalized at Huntington Memorial Hospital, where he is undergoing hydrotherapy.

Citrus plans jazz concert

Jazz rock drummer Les DeMerle and his octet, Transfusion, will present a concert in the Citrus College auditorium at 7:30 p.m. next Thursday.

Also on the program will be the 20-member Citrus Jazz Ensemble, top-rated jazz group at last year's Orange Coast Jazz Festival sponsored by the University of Nevada, and played with the El Toro Marine Base Jazz Band, the "Ballet in Brass," written especially for the Citrus College group by Vic Schoen, nationally known composer and arranger.

Both groups will appear in a finale, led by DeMerle, with a drum panaroma featuring eight sets of drums.

Admission charge is $3.50 for adults and $2.50 for students with ID cards.

DeMerle and his group play high energy jazz. DeMerle says of his music, "This band almost gives people a transfusion. We used to think of it as new blood, new fire, exploring new music. We play to a lot of different audiences at festivals and concerts, not just the hard-core jazz audiences, but for people who have never even heard improvised music before."

In addition to leading Transfusion, DeMerle composes most of its music and conducts music and drum clinics across the country. He has recorded award-winning albums and operates the Cellar Theater, a musical showcase in Hollywood.

Queen dance slated

Twenty-four Mexican-American girls from Los Angeles, San Bernardino and Riverside counties will be honored at a Presentation Dance in Rialto Friday as candidates for the Cinco de Mayo Festival of Projecto Accion Social (PAS).

Providing music for the dancing from 8 p.m. to 1 a.m. in Pantry Hall will be Los Fabulosos Tiburones and Los Tijuana Jets.

Tickets are $5, purchased in advance from the queen candidates or from PAS, and $7 at the door.

KATHREEN PROUT

Symphony sets spring concert

The Claremont Symphony Orchestra, conducted by George Denes, will present its spring concert in Bridges Hall, Pomona College, at 4 p.m. March 27. Admission is free.

The program includes the overture "Colas Breugnon" by Kabalevsky; "Capriccio Italien" by Tchaikowsky; "Crystal Lake" by Elinor Remick Warren, and "Capriccio Brillant" by Mendelssohn.

Miss Warren, composer of "Crystal Lake" is well known in local Southern California music circles. Once an accomplished pianist and accompanist, she turned her talents to composing, and many of her works have been performed by major orchestras in Europe and America. "Crystal Lake" was first performed by the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra with Alfred Wallenstein conducting. James Fahringer will conduct the Claremont Symphony Orchestra in this piece.

Kathreen Reime Prout, well known to audiences in the Pomona Valley, will be piano soloist on the "Capriccio Brillant."

THE ARTS EXPLOSION
Everybody Is Getting Involved In The Arts
The arts — music, painting, dancing and drama — are the hottest thing to hit community life. All over America, people are getting involved with summer festivals and special centers where the attendance figures have doubled in the last 10 years. The arts are even outmuscling sports now in popular appeal. This week, you'll visit some of these places, including a town where people have made the arts so public that even the garbage trucks are emblazoned with the design of a famous sculptor! Best of all, you'll find out how you and your home town can get involved too.

Almanac

By The Associated Press

Today is Thursday, March 10, the 69th day of 1977. There are 296 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1876, the first clear telephone call was made when Alexander Graham Bell summoned his assistant from another room in Bell's house in Boston, saying: "Come here, Watson. I want you."

On this date:

In 1785, Thomas Jefferson was named the U.S. minister to France, succeeding Benjamin Franklin.

In 1848, the U.S. Senate ratified a treaty ending the Mexican War.

In 1864, Ulysses Grant was named Commander in Chief of Union forces in the Civil War.

In 1941, President Franklin D. Roosevelt signed the Lendlease Act, providing for transfer of military equipment to the Allies in World War II.

In 1969, in Memphis, Tenn., James Earl Ray pleaded guilty to the assassination of the civil rights leader, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

Ten years ago: It was reported that Joseph Stalin's daughter, Svetlana Stalin, had defected from the Soviet Union and was seeking asylum in a European country.

Five years ago: Premier Lon Nol of Cambodia seized complete power as head of state and nullified the country's nearly completed constitution.

One year ago: Former President Richard M. Nixon said that public disclosure in 1969 of the secret U.S. bombing of Cambodia had forced him to ground the planes and had cost countless American lives.

Today's birthday: Queen Elizabeth's fourth child, Prince Edward, is 13.

Thought for today: Revenge is always the weak pleasure of a little and narrow mind. — Juvenal, Roman lawyer and satirist, about 60 to 140 AD.

'Merchants of misery' testify at hearing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bill collectors try to generate fear in debtors and often threaten legal action when none is intended, two former bill collectors told Congress on Tuesday.

One of the former collectors called them "merchants of misery."

"You can't be a nice guy and bring in the money," said Hugh Wilson, a former California debt collector. "The general idea is to generate an aura of fear and doubt in the mind of the debtor."

Wilson and William R. Mann, a former bill collector in Maryland, said their employers instructed them to collect money in any way possible, including lies, threats and harassment.

"With only a few exceptions, and I want to emphasize the word few, I have never heard of an honest or reputable collection agency," said Mann, who was a collector for 12 years.

"This is an industry like no other industry that you can imagine. While some businesses sell furniture and others are engaged in grocery store operations, debt collectors sell only one product — they are merchants of misery," he said.

The witnesses testified before a House banking subcommittee that is considering legislation to make it illegal for a debt collection agency to make harassing or threatening phone calls.

The legislation by Rep. Frank Annunzio, D-Ill., also would forbid a collector from impersonating an attorney or police officer.

The two former bill collectors said they were told by their employers to use certain phrases calculated to instill fear in the debtor and induce him to pay.

These include "refusal to pay will result in immediate and appropriate adverse legal action."

Both Wilson and Mann said collectors frequently tell debtors that legal action is about to be taken when there is no such plan.

They said many collectors pay no attention to whether the debt actually is owed and they will accept no excuse for failure to pay.

Wilson said he heard a San Francisco collection manager identify himself as a sheriff and tell a debtor that he was coming by to pick up his welfare check to satisfy a debt.

Another witness, Gus De Rocca of Hoboken, N.J., said his sister had been harassed by a collection agency to the point that she was too upset to appear before the subcommittee.

After De Rocca finished telling the story, Rep. Millicent Fenwick, R-N.J., a former head of the New Jersey consumer affairs division, said Mrs. Caputo didn't owe a "dime on this debt" because the debt had been contracted by the husband before their marraige.

Ford home plans told

PALM SPRINGS (AP) — The retirement home Former President Gerald Ford is planning to build at Rancho Mirage will have an extensive wine vault and spacious two-bedroom guest wing complete with kitchen facilities.

Plans for the new home, which will border the 13th fairway of the exclusive Thunderbird Country Club were obtained and reported Tuesday by The Desert Sun.

Although nothing like their former Pennsylania Avenue address in size, the new home won't leave the former first family feeling closed in.

The builder tentatively selected by the Fords told the newspaper the family will have a 6,500-square foot Spanish style hacienda to stretch out in, probably in time to enjoy a desert Christmas.

He said the contracts are expected to be signed withn the week for the new home. He declined to disclose its cost.

The Ford home will straddle two residential lots on San Dune Road in Rancho Mirage, where they now are leasing a home. It will share a tennis court under construction by the Ford's neighbor, former U.S. Ambassador to Belgium Leonard K. Firestone.

The 15-room house is designed in "simplistic elegance" according to the builder, who asked not to be identifed. In front will be a bank of sun-tinted sliding glass doors opening onto the front entrance.

In back, a landscaped patio will face the golf course. The Fords also plan a swimming pool for the former president's daily swim. The patio will also contain a fountain and therapy pool.

Inside, guests will enter into a large living room with a fireplace. There are two maids' rooms, a sitting room, dining room and a kitchen "suitable for entertaining."

Gerald and Betty Ford will share a master bedroom, as they did in the White House, but have indicated to the builders they wish the convenience of separate bathrooms. The former president will have a large study.

The builder said the Ford family will announce the start of construction later this week in a release by their architectural firm.

Number of poverty children down

WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of school-aged children living in poverty declined by more than half a million in the first half of this decade, with the South accounting for all of the decrease, the government has reported.

The Census Bureau said the number of such children in 1975 was 7.13 million, off by 568,848 from the 1970 census.

And the drop came despite the fact that the number of school children living in poverty was up in the Northeast, North Central and Western states. The number of poor school children in the South dropped by 717,751 in those five years to 3.1 million.

The survey, a joint effort of the Census Bureau and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, will apparently be a key factor in congressional decisions on how to distribute $1.65 billion in federal funds spent to help states educate the poor and disadvantaged.

And the survey is likely to become the latest chapter in the continuing struggle between the Northeast and North Central regions for a bigger share of federal funds for a broad range of programs. Those regions, which have been losing population to the so-called Sun Belt states, have complained that a disproportionate share of federal money goes to the South and West.

But the latest survey, despite showing that the South alone reduced its school-age poverty population in the five-year period, still left the South with 43.4 per cent of all U.S. school children living in poverty. The Northeast, with 1.3 million such children, had 18.6 per cent; the North Central area, with 1.58 million, had 22.1 per cent, and the West, with 1.13 million, had 15.8 per cent.

And the number of poor school children in the South per 1,000 of all children of school age was still the highest of any region: 19.6. The poverty rate was 12 for the Northeast, 11.6 for the North Central states, and 12.9 for the West.

The survey was taken under terms of a 1974 law, in which Congress expressed concern that the 1970 census figures were too outdated to be used for determining how to distribute money under the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965.

Any changes in the distribution formula would have to come through legislation. But HEW worked up a hypothetical table showing how the current year's funds under that law would be distributed if the formula was updated to reflect only population shifts.

Of the $1.65 billion allocated for such aid, $417 million would go to the Northeast, for an increase of $37 million over current distribution methods. The North Central states would also get a $37 million increase to a total of $400 million.

What's unimportant

51st state a state of mind

SOMEWHERE SOUTH OF HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — America's 51st state proves to be, on inspection, as true to its high purpose as the day it was founded and this sign was raised at its border:

"Entering Nayaug, Capital of Glastonbury. Bypassed by Progress and Blessed by the Lord."

And down below:

"Please walk your horses. Adults at play."

Anyone unaware that America had a 51st state, Nayaug, will be relieved that it is, as Mayor Jim Finne explains, a state of mind. Anyone unaware that America needed a new state of mind hasn't been paying attention to what's unimportant.

Oh, Nayaug is a place all right, a rural square mile bounded by the Connecticut River and Roaring Brook where hypocrisy is unknown and the meek have inherited the earth.

"We just think life is terribly grim," Jim Finne said. "Everybody seems to be running around with gavels and clipboards and causes and taking themselves so seriously. Well, we don't."

To put it mildly. What Nayaugians do instead is skewer the pompous with satire and laugh all the while.

Thus they elected Chet Hodge, village butcher, as Man of the Year, held a parade and also a house tour around Chet's birthplace at which Nayaug Social Director, Ruth Witherspoon, pointed out such historic sites as "the drainpipe Chet slid down, the tree Chet climbed, the window of the room where Chet was potty trained." Overcome, Chet wept.

Thus, they elected village grocer Elmer Gardiner as Governor of Nayaug and when he announced for president from atop a hay wagon at a pancake breakfast, they fired a 2.1 gun salute in his honor, two muskets and a pistol.

Thus they dedicated a section of Mayor Finne's pasture as a Village Green, and after a few appropriate words from the Nayaug Historian, E.P. Mangan, and from the Nayaug Venerable Latin Scholar, John Finney, and a few lines from the Nayaug Poet Laureate and Militant Feminist, Hilda Moe, and kisses all around from the Nayaug First Lady, septuagenarian Ruth Dufford, and advice on the danger of sitting on cold stones from the Beloved Proctologist, Archibald Ascoulbrooch, and a tune or two on the piano by the Nayaug Musical Director and Ambassador to the Vatican, Joe Puzzo, the assembled Nayaugians erected a sign:

"On this spot 357 years ago nothing happened."

Nayaugians go for signs. One sign encourages ball-playing on the green. Another, placed by the Nayaug Conservationist — or was it the Cat Control Commissioner? — warns: Native Rattlesnake Crossing.

Even before all this tomfoolery began, about 15 years ago, the neighborhood hereabouts was known as Nayaug, the southern section of the city of Glastonbury. The name is an Indian word for Roaring Brook. We have that on authority of the Nayaug Archivist.

"The tribe was described as a peace loving people often harassed by more warlike neighbors," Mayor Finne said. "We find that appropriate."

Sufficiently harassed, though, peace-loving Nayaugians will fight back. Like the time the city tried to pave Nayaug's last remaining dirt lane, Dug Road.

"The Town Manager, Don Peach, wanted it paved," Finne said. The voice was shrill behind the grin. "That sort of progress we can do without.

"So, with proper ceremony, we changed its name. We changed it from Dug Road to Donald C. Peach Boulevard. Now I ask you, would a public servant dare improve his own memorial?"

Donald C. Peach Blvd. remains unprogressively unpaved.

"It's good fun, something neighbors can catch the spirit of," said Social Director Witherspoon. "If it helps us keep our perspective, so much the better.

"We plan all our unorganized activities, of course, at irregular meetings of the Nayaug Great Books Club."

One such activity was an assault last week on the Connecticut Legislature to petition Nayaug's neighboring state to join in pardoning Lord Cornwallis.

It's a complicated story, something to do with Cornwallis having had an amour with a Nayaug maiden and therefore couldn't have been all bad and, besides, Ford had pardoned Nixon and, furthermore, Gov. Gardiner had made a campaign promise ...

Then there was the Great Whale Watch.

That recent gathering came about after John Finney, on a moonlight stroll with his wife Dotty along the riverbank, spotted what was, he said, unmistakably a New Zealand Right Pigmy Whale.

Nayaugians calculated that if they would but assemble at the exact spot beneath the next full moon they could summon from the depths the same creature by firing a cannon and blowing a trombone.

Joyce Brothers

To each his own

DEAR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS: I consider myself a full-blooded male but I notice that I'm attracted to a very different kind of woman than some of my friends seem to be. I find the women they're attracted to are incredibly dull, and these men tell me that my choices are all masculine, aggressive and hard. I don't know what my friends mean by this, because I think my women are just the opposite. They're intelligent but also sexy. If you wonder why I'm writing you, it's because somewhere inside me I'm worried about this difference of opinion. — K.B.

Dear K.B.: Be glad everyone isn't attracted to the same type. The important thing is that you enjoy and respect women and that you have satisfying relations with them. Your friends may not be quite so lucky. I suspect they may have locked themselves into a kind of macho sex role. Just as they see themselves as super males, they may also insist that their women be limited in another direction.

The ideal man and woman is a mixture of male and female. In two Stanford University psychologists' studies it was found that men and women who possessed a combination of "masculine" and "feminine" traits were more flexible and had more balanced personalities.

Persons who are fortunate to fall in this category probably relate better to the opposite sex and have a much more rewarding, much deeper love life. We can see indications of this in many areas.

The super male who limits and censors himself and his choices in life is apt to wind up spending most of his waking hours with other males. He may not like, understand or enjoy women nearly as much as he pretends. Instead, he may really feel threatened by them.

DEAR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS: My father is dying of an incurable illness and I want to be with him as much as possible during these last days. I don't want my family, however, to suffer any more than necessary, and I certainly don't want to carry my depression home to my young children. It pains me to see my father, yet I want to and know I must. Unfortunately, I'm not a religious person. I wish I were. Do you have any thoughts on how I can bear this? — Y.T.

Dear Y.T.: It's vital for you to have someone who can share your burden in this time of great stress. The more you can share your anxieties and discuss them with others, the greater the likelihood that they will be reduced. The level of stress is reduced when people hear others describe anxieties that are comparable to their won.

Where are these people with similar problems? You probably see them every day in the waiting room of the hospital. I realize it isn't easy to suddenly go up to a total stranger who may be absorbed in his own problems and start a conversation, but if you see an opportunity, don't ignore it. If you meet the same people day after day, you might just offer to get a coffee or a cold drink.

People suffering the kind of pain you're experiencing often feel locked in and totally isolated from the rest of the world that seems so happy and carefree by comparison. In many hospitals there are programs organized by members of the staff to help foster discussions among friends and relatives of the critically ill.

Your doctor too should be able to give you some of the moral support you need. Even though you aren't especially religious, a talk with a minister could be helpful.

Engagements told

SUSAN MARBERRY

Marberry-Licause

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Dan Marberry of Norco announce the engagement of their daughter Susan Anne Marberry to John Jay Licause of Pomona.

The bride-to-be is a nurse at San Dimas Community Hospital, San Dimas. She is a 1976 graduate of Chaffey Junior College, where she was a member of the Student Nurses Association.

Mr. Licause, son of Mrs. Norrine Licause of Pomona, is owner-operator of the John Licause Trucking Company. He is a 1967 graduate of Garey High School.

The couple will be married Sept. 24 at Holy Name of Mary Church in San Dimas.

Institute schedules gathering

Members of Young Ladies' Institute, Pomona Chapter, will attend Mass at 9:30 a.m., Sunday, at St. Joseph Church in Pomona.

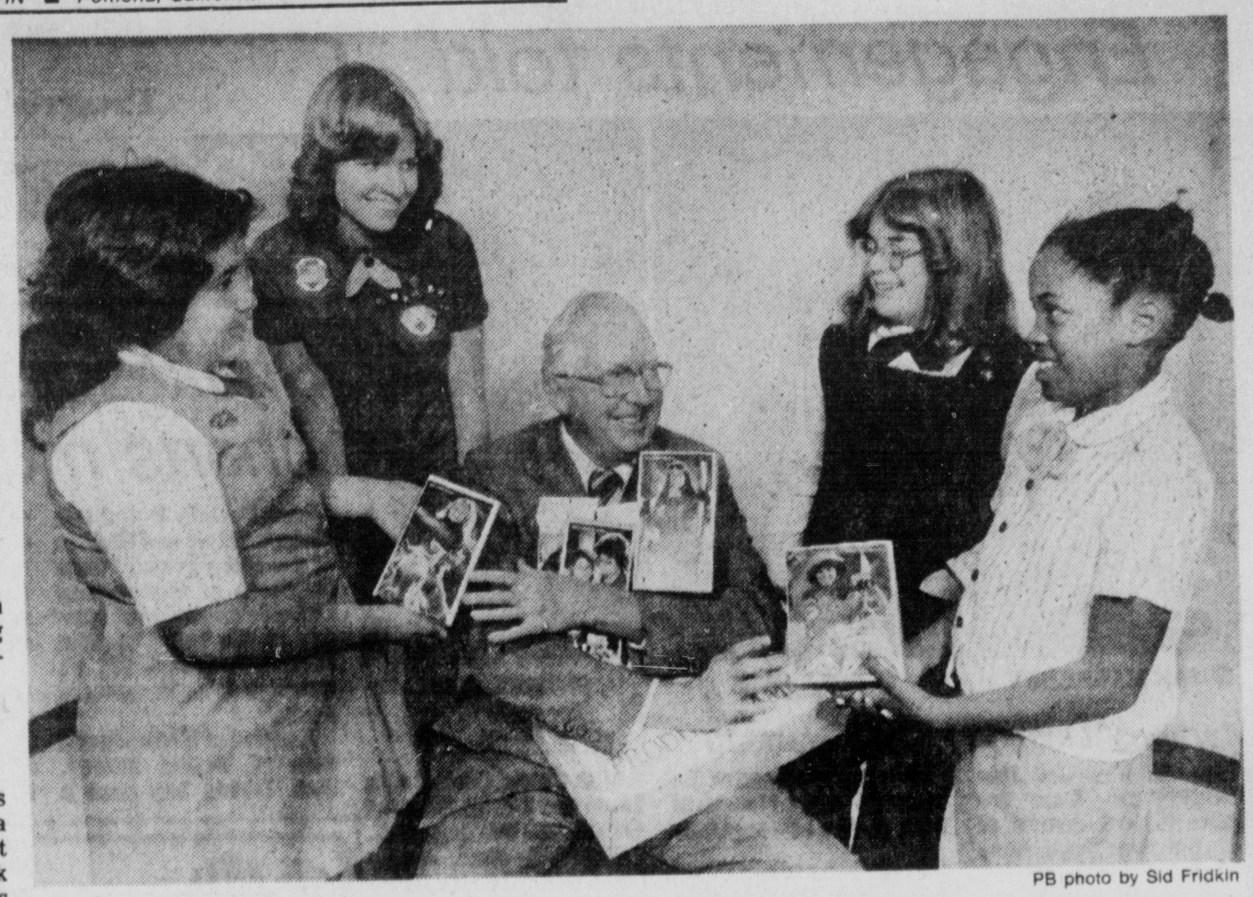

Later they will attend a breakfast at Mission Family Restaurant, 888 W. Mission Boulevard, Pomona.

The Rev. Bernard Flanagan, pastor of the church, will be the speaker at the breakfast.

Some differ

In Ireland, St. Patrick's Day is primarily a religious observance that lasts three days, Hallmark researcher Sally Hopkins says. In America, the celebration is characterized by parties and parades.

Christian women slate convocation

Over 500 women of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) in Southern California and southern Nevada will gather Friday and Saturday for the fourth regional convocation for women.

The opening session on Friday at the Sheraton-Anaheim Motor Hotel is 2 p.m. "Empowered to be . . . " is the theme for the convocation. Lisa Sergio, church woman, lecturer, author and authority in international relations, will be the speaker.

The theme will be explored through 15 simultaneous seminars covering such topics as aging, personal and apiritual enrichment, creativity, missions, crisis, volunteerism, separateness and others.

Moist message

Speaker scheduled in L.A.

"Traveling and searching for Ancestors in Europe" is the topic of a talk to be given by Dr. Joseph R. Beckstead before the Southern California Genealogical Society Friday at 7:30 p.m. at 5670 Wilshire Boulevard, Los Angeles in the third floor auditorium.

Dr. Beckstead is a professor at USC and a lecturer in musical education.

Girl Scouts begin annual cookie sale

Girl Scouts within the 33 communities served by Spanish Trails Council will visit friends and neighbors between Friday and March 21 to take orders for the 1977 annual cookie sale.

Beverly Conway of Hacienda Heights and Ann Hurmence of La Verne, council cookie cochairmen, will provide the leadership for the annual endeavor. JoAnne Fikes, council finance committee chairman, and Mary Jane Lawrence, council finance director, will be on hand to lend support to the many volunteers involved.

Brownie, Junior, Cadette and Senior Girl Scouts will participate in the sale, offering seven varieties of products from the Burry Division of the Quaker Oats Company. Two new items have been added this year, an old fashioned cookie filled with rich nuggets of chocolate chips, and a cheddarette cracker.

The sale is traditionally an integral part of Scouting's finance picture. Camp maintenance, equipment and other scout programs benefit from the proceeds.

Residents of the communities within council boundaries are invited to participate through their support of the endeavor, according to Mrs. Patricia Newton of Pomona, council president.

Spanish Trails is headquartered at 1550 N. Garey Ave., Pomona, and is a participating member agency of the West End United Way, Orange County United Way North/South and the Los Angeles County United Way, Inc.

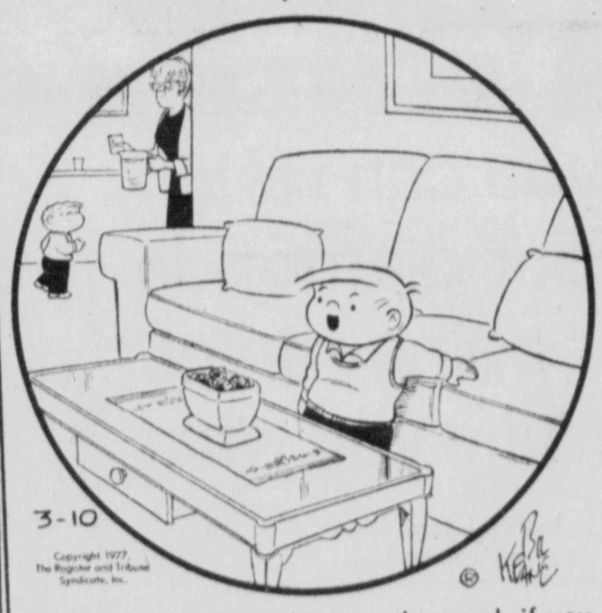

Singles will hear speaker

The Claremont Adult Singles will hear a talk by Mrs. Arlene Steiner when the group meets at 8 p.m., Friday, in the Round Room of Claremont United Methodist Church.

Her topic will be "All About Singles."

Further information may be obtained by calling Jim Buntain, 822-3053 after 4:30 p.m.

Rummage sale slated this week

The United Methodist Women of Philadelphia Street United Methodist Church will hold its semi-annual rummage sale Friday and Saturday at the church, Philadelphia street and San Antonio avenue, Pomona.

The sale hours will be 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Friday, and 9 a.m. to noon, Saturday.

There will be a large selection of household items, toys, books and furniture offered for sale.

Sacred shamrock

The shamrock worn on St. Patrick's Day apparently has a religious significance. Hallmark researcher Sally Hopkins says: "Historians believe St. Patrick used a shamrock to explain the Trinity to his converts. The leaves represented the Father, the Son and the Holy Spirit, while the stem was the Godhead itself."

Antique buffs note: the Claremont Antique Show will be held Fri. thru Sun., March 11-13 in the Pavilion. Put on your comfy shoes and "go antiquing" 1-10 pm Fri. and Sat.; 12-6 Sun.

Or, if all the newest looks are what's important to you, do your shopping at Fashions By Gosh to achieve that "young missy" look. Coordinating separates in popular labels, costume jewelry and accessories — you can even have your new outfits tailored here within a couple days if need be. Now Fashions has a pretty new location too, in the north corner of G.O.S.H.

Did you know we have an award-winning goldsmith in our midst? Barrett Reese, our resident goldsmith, won a national design competition sponsored by the DeBeers Diamond Corp. for a gorgeous gold and solitaire ring he created. Interestingly, his career as a jeweler, gemnologist and goldsmith came about because a special project in a crafts class sparked his interest in jewelry making! Barry will make up his designs to your specifications, and what a lovely piece it will be!

Speaking of artsy people, Covina artist, Pat Park, will demonstrate the use of acrylics in the Art Gallery on Saturday, (March 12), at 2:00 PM.

Have you been into Ramon's lately to sample the new menu? We have a daily special now - Mon. nite's highlight is 2-for-1 Margaritas. Ole!

I bet we're the only place around that gives you live music to shop by! This Sun. you can take a whirl through the shops and do your shopping to a lively polka beat. The Miakar Brothers band will entertain us on the patio from 1:30-4:30. Come on over — "We'll have a barrel of fun"!

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

Q. "HOW DID THE GAME OF BOWLING BEGIN?"

PAUL HARRINGTON MILWAUKIE, OR

A. BOWLING ORIGINATED HUNDREDS OF YEARS AGO IN GERMANY WHEN THE GERMANS ROLLED STONES AT THEIR WOODEN WAR CLUBS

When you play a game called bowling, you try to knock down 10 wooden pins by rolling a ball toward them.

Bowling has been played for thousands of years in various forms. Balls and pins found in Egyptian graves show that bowling is at least 7,000 years old.

The early Dutch settlers of New York bought the game of ninepins to America. In the tale of Rip Van Winkle, the strange beings Rip meets in the mountains are playing nine-pins, and the noise of their balls striking the pins sounded like thunder.

People gambled so heavily that "bowling at ninepins" was outlawed in the 1800s. But bowlers soon found a way around the law. They added an extra pin and started the tenpin game of today!

Land dealer will return $19,000

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A Hawaii man has been ordered to return nearly $19,000 to 13 persons who bought Southern California land from him in 1973 and 1974.

Cary Keith, 34, of Kauai was also sentenced to six months in jail and placed on three years probation Monday by Superior Judge Raymond Cardenas.

Keith pleaded no contest Feb. 7 to one count of grand theft. Prosecutors said the former Kauai Community College instructor sold land in Los Angeles, Kern and San Bernardino counties to the investors, who never received deeds. Most of the land was foreclosed when Keith failed to make payments on it, officials said.

NOTICE INVITING BIDS FOR REMOVAL OF MECHANICAL EQUIPMENT AND PIPING

Notice is hereby given that sealed bids will be received by the Purchasing Agent of County Sanitation District No. 21 of Los Angeles County, at the office of said District, 1955 Workman Mill Road, Whittier, California, 90601, up to the hour of 11:00 A.M., Tuesday, March 15, 1977 for removal of mechanical equipment and piping.

All in accordance with Districts' "Specifications for Removal of Mechanical Equipment and Piping at the Pomona Water Renovation Plant" dated Feoruary, 1977.

Each bid must be on proposal forms to be obtained at the office of the District at the above stated address and must be accompanied by a certified or cashier's check or bond with an approved surety company as surety, payable to "County Sanitation District No. 21 of Los Angeles County", for an amount equal to at least ten percent of the amount bid as a guaranty that the bidder, if successful, will enter into a contract satisfactory to the said Purchasing Agent for the doing of the work contemplated and the successful bidder will be required to file good and sufficient bonds for the faithful performance of the contract and for the payment of laborers and materialmen.

The Purchasing Agent reserves the right to open all bids submitted and to report the results to the Districts' Board of Directors for determination. The right is reserved to reject any and all bids, to accept one part, and reject the other and/or award an order as will best serve the interests of the Districts.

Bidders on this work will be required to comply with the President's Executive Order NO. 11246. The requirements for bidders and contractors are in the proposal.

Pursuant to the provisions of Section 1773 of the Labor Code of the State of California, County Sanitation District No. 21 of Los Angeles County has obtained the following general prevailing rates in the locality in which this public works is to be performed.

APPRENTICES - May be employed in conformity with Section 1777.5 of the California Labor Code.

Provided that overtime rates, rate of pay for Saturdays, Sundays and holidays shall apply to those holidays as recognized in the collective bargaining agreement applicable to the particular craft, classification or type of workman employed on the project.

Provided that travel and subsistence payments apply to the particular craft, classifications, or type of workman employed in the project, as such travel and subsistence payments are defined in the applicable collective bargaining agreements filed in accordance with Section 1773.8 of the Labor Code, State of California.

Provided that notwithstanding the general provision contained herein, Guards and Watchmen shall be paid one and one-half times the prevailing rate for overtime (overtime shall be time worked in excess of eight hours per day or forty hours per week), and the straight prevailing rate for time worked on Saturdays, Sundays, and where such time does not constitute overtime.

Except as otherwise specifically provided for painter classifications, the rates of per diem wages for each of the various classifications of work shall be the hereinafter set forth prevailing rate of hourly wages plus the hourly equivalent of any employer payments for health and welfare, pension, vacation and similar purposes multiplied by eight. Eight hours shall constitute a day's work; it being understood that in the event that workmen are employed less than eight hours per day, their per diem wages shall be determined to be that fraction of the per diem wages herein established that the number of hours of employments bears to eight hours.
